LINDBERGH WRITES with marvelous ease and in simple, natural style, and actually writes as he flies.

"These flats were actually covered with thousands of pelicans and other water birds. Here and there a grass but appeared and there were numerous dugouts with small sails, sometimes several miles out in the ocean.

"I flew low over some of the rivers I passed and could see dozens of alligators sunning themselves along the banks. Some of them must have been more than fifteen feet in length.

"Now and then a miniature river appears, apparently from nowhere, and dashes out over a precipice to fall in a curtain of mist and disappear again in the jungle several hundred feet below."

Thus a man flying through the air, and, as he says, "slowing down to ninety miles an hour," studies the earth below, seeing, in fine weather, ten thousand square miles at a glance. That means only fifty miles in each direction—100X100=10,000.

What would Livingstone and other old travelers, including Moses on his trip, think of that?

New York's Neurological Institute wants to know why men's brains develop differently and what chance there is of getting "full use of the brain."

The brain of man, which is the intelligence of the earth, is strangely like the earth itself.

We use a thin layer of the earth, the fertile soil, the mines and the oil a little way down. We leave unused unlimited sources of energy deep down in the earth.

In his brain man uses a thin strip on top called the "cortex," a sort of "bark," with convolutions more or less deep.

The real body of the brain, cold, gray matter, remains unused. It will take millions of years perhaps to develop that deep brain, drive those convolutions all the way down, and use the whole brain. There is more wealth unused in the human brain than in this big earth, 8,000 miles through.

The United States pays more toward the expenses of the League of Nations than any other country except Britain—although we are not in the league. That's usual. We paid more than any other nation for that big war—about fifty-nine million dollars

CHILDS OF CAFE FAME MARRIES

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—William Childs, president of the Childs chain of restaurants and Savoy Plaza Corporation, and Mrs. Victoria Ludgate Murray, a cousin of his first wife, were married at the Basking Ridge Presbyterian Church today, with only the pastor's wife and a chauffeur as witnesses.

Mrs. Murray is the widow of James Irving Murray and the mother of three children.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs left for a short stay at Atlantic City, planning an extended European tour later.

FIRST BIG STORM OF SEASON VISITS HUB; 5 INCHES EXPECTED

A real old-fashioned snowstorm, the first of the season, scheduled to last into tonight with a total fall of five inches, was predicted by the weather bureau today, two hours after the first gentle flakes began falling about 8 o'clock.

Northeast storm warnings were out along the coast from Boston to Delaware Breakwater, and gales were expected along the coast tonight.

The official forecast read: Snow this afternoon and tonight; colder tonight; Sunday fair; high northeast winds with gales along the coast tonight.

Today's storm was due to a union of two storm areas, converging on New England yesterday, one from the Lake region and the other from off the Florida coast, which met off Cape Hatteras during the night.

Snow began falling about 3 o'clock and two hours later the storm had increased considerably in intensity

'BOSSY' DOING N. Y. TO SEE THAT GUY WALKER

New York, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—"Bossy" Gillis, mayor of Newburyport, Mass., came to New York today to see a show or two, look at Mayor Walker and take in the Bronx Zoo.

"Study the administration and subways? Ha! Ha!" exclaimed "Bossy" right lustily. "What do I want to look over my subways and administration for? I came here to see this guy Jimmy Walker do a fancy high stepping show or so and give this here new Holland tube the once over."

"Bossy" got into town after a tedious ride from Boston, a ride that he denounced in emphatic terms.

He announced that if he could spare the time from his mayoralty duties in Newburyport he might run for chairman of something and give the railroads a piece of his mind

He was reclining on a bed at the Hotel McAlpin when newspaper men descended upon him. After first removing his shirt to exhibit his muscular development, "Bossy" bestowed himself upon the coverlet in comfortable fashion and said:

"Shoot."

HICKMAN REPUDIATES MURDER CONFESSION

Los Angeles, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—William Edward Hickman, kidnaper-slayer of Marian Parker, "Does not admit" the alleged facts of the crime, and today repudiated his confession to the police, his attorneys declared.

Jerome Walsh, Hickman's chief counsel, also revealed defense plans for demanding a second trial if the jury in the present case finds the defendant sane.

Walsh declared that his client does not admit killing the girl, that he has entered a plea of "not guilty" by reason of insanity," and that if he is found to have been sane at the time of the crime, an arrest of judgment will be in order and immediately.

Then, Walsh said, a demand for another trial will be made under the idea that Hickman now is insane. He pointed out that under the California law an insane man cannot be executed.

Hickman made the repudiation of his confession to Dr. A. L. Skoog of Kansas City, chief of the defense staff of alienists.

When questioned about the repudiation, Walsh admitted it had been made, then quickly declared:

"I do not care to discuss this now."

Walsh immediately left to go into conference with Dr. Skoog and other defense attorneys. The attorneys planned to map the opening Monday

POLICE WANT TO KNOW OF SMITH GIRL'S LIFE AT HOME AND SCHOOL

Northampton, Jan. 28.—Through a snowstorm that was like a spotless white shroud encompassing their dying hopes, two men trudged today along the road to Leeds, where a dozen State police officials met in the second day of conference on the Frances St. John Smith mystery.

One was a famous educator, one a wealthy, retired New York broker. One was a man of impressive stature, one small, almost diminutive in size.

One was William Allen Neilson, president of Smith College. The other was St. John Smith, father of the missing girl.

At the Leeds barracks of the State troopers, the missing girl's father and the president of the college from which, in less than three years, two students have vanished without a trace, met with General Alfred E. Foote, commissioner of public safety, State detectives and local police.

The calling of the father and the college head was indicative of one

JANITOR NAMES MAN IN CELLAR DURING MURDER

Ira Joy, janitor of the Homenway street apartment house in which the body of its owner, David Goodman, wealthy Brookline resident, was found, today told police that a man was in the basement at the time Goodman met his death.

Joy gave the name and address of the man, and police were sent to find him. In the meantime the janitor went to police headquarters for further questioning.

Joy told the story to Special Officers Haggerty and Riley of Division 16.

New blood stains have been discovered in rooms it was planned to use for janitor's quarters off the boiler room in the basement.

WANTED TO SLEEP

The stains were found on three pieces of linoleum and a copy of a Boston newspaper of last Friday which was on a bed in one of the rooms.

Joy said the man in the basement left the apartment house at 7:15. Said Joy: "About 7 o'clock Tuesday

LYNN PASTOR, IN ROW OVER GIRL, TO RESIGN

The Rev. Chester J. Underhill, pastor of the Washington Street Baptist Church, Lynn, who has been a storm centre there since last Fall, will accede to the demands of a committee of the Massachusetts Baptist Convention and resign from the ministry, it was announced today.

The announcement was made by his counsel, Attorney Starr Parsons, who said Mr. Underhill would probably enter the real estate and insurance business after separating himself from the church.

His resignation from his pastorate and from the ministry was demanded after an investigating committee of 11 clergymen found him guilty of having accompanied a young woman to New York. The clergyman said he had made the trip to save her soul, and that he was successful, and his church refused to accept his resignation last October.

POLITICAL REFUGEES SAFE IN PAN-AMERICA

Havana, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—The right of nations belonging to the Pan-American Union to grant asylum to political refugees, but denial of this privilege to persons guilty of common crimes, was agreed upon today by the Pan-American commission considering amendments to international law, as affecting member nations.

The clauses approved by the commission would compel member nations to surrender personns resident within their own borders charged with committing common crimes in another country.

While specifically sanctioning the asylum of political refugees, the proposed draft would expressedly forbid such refugees to engage in activities which might jeopardize the peace of their own country while accepting such asylum.

Which of These Fates Befell Smith Heiress in Baffling Disappearance From Fashionable College?

(Posed Especially for Boston Evening American Staff Photographers by Members of the Greenwich Village Follies Co., Now Playing at the Shubert Theatre, Boston).

AMNESIA VICTIM
Sylvia Carol, posing as Frances Smith, to show how the heiress could have been a victim of amnesia and wandered the streets of some city.

COULD HAVE ELOPED
Miss Carol as Frances and Charles Judels as her fiance, show in the second of the series of the pictorial story how she could have eloped. No man is suspected in connection with the case.

DID SHE PLOT DEATH?
The theory has been held that she stood on Hadley bridge, over the Connecticut river near Northampton, and finally made the leap. Miss Carol portrays that possibility.

DID KIDNAPERS SEIZE HER?
Miss Carol, principal in the Greenwich village Follies, and Charles Judels and Frank Crookshank of that company, depict very plausibly this most popular of all theories in the enigma of the heiress. Many still believe she was kidnaped.

HELPLESS IN WOODS?
Was Frances Smith lost in the woods near Smith College? Did she fall and injure herself? Did she finally die there, helpless and alone, slowly starving? Miss Carol makes it plausible.

DID SHE GO, HIDDEN ON TRAIN?
This theory also has been held persistently by the army of searchers whose work has been in vain—that she rode in the smoker so as to evade other girls. Miss Carol shows how it could have been done. Trainmen have been questioned in vain.

of the defense case, and decide upon the first defense witness.

Hickman Defense Will Open Ahead of Prosecution Case

Los Angeles, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—Because the prosecution contends that Wi[illegible] Edward Hickman admitted the kidnaping and murder of Marion [illegible] when he pleaded "not guilty" by reason of insanity" the defense will [illegible] at testimony after the jury is sworn.

[illegible] will be principals in the form of thirty-six depositions from relatives and friends of Hickman by which defense attorneys hope to show that he was insane from birth.

Hickman's confession will be repudiated, Attorney Walsh said, despite the fact that at the time he was arraigned on the kidnaping and murder indictment Hickman was asked if he understood that an insanity defense, under the new California law, was an admission of guilt.

Hickman answered that he knew the purport of the plea.

CRIMINAL SAWS BAR, FLEES HOSPITAL WARD

Springfield, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—Sawing a bar in the hospital ward of Hampden county jail and making his way down a ladder outside early today, John Bo[illegible], 30 desperate criminal, escaped. Boy was wearing his prison suit of gray and his temperature was in the neighborhood of 103½ degrees as he had been confined to the hospital department with a severe cold for several days.

Says Censorship in Any Form Is Un-American

New York, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.)—Censorship in any form—motion pictures, press or pulpit—"is un-American, unconstitutional and ineffective," Congressman Florence Kahn of California declared today in an address before the annual convention of the National Board of Review of motion pictures.

"We cannot forbid to mentally fit into people," she said. "Censorship of the radio would be the next logical step to be attempted if Federal censorship of pictures was to prevail, she asserted.

SILBERT WOULD RETIRE TO AID FULLER SLATE

Former Representative Coleman Silbert, in a letter today to Internal Revenue Collector Thomas W. White, offers to withdraw his candidacy as a delegate to the Republican National Convention if White, who comes from the same district, will run on a "Fuller-for-President" ticket.

The Silbert communication to White, reads:

"A statement appeared in the [illegible] that you and [illegible] from my district, if elected delegates, would vote for Fuller for President. If you and your associates will agree if elected to go pledged as Fuller delegates, I shall be glad to withdraw from the field.

"The issue of whether Governor Fuller shall be the Massachusetts candidate for President should be paramount to all personal issues."

A reply in the affirmative by White will be regarded by many as going a long way in clearing up the political atmosphere in Massachusetts Republican circles, in view of the deflection caused by the announcement for Hoover made by Senator Frederick H. Gillett of Springfield.

FORMER PRESIDENT OF AERO CLUB DEAD AT 68

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Colonel Jefferson LeMont Thompson, capitalist and former president of the Aero Club of America, died today at his apartment in the Chatham Hotel. Colonel Thompson, who was 63 years old, had been in ill health since he suffered a stroke about a year and a half ago.

NEW HAVERHILL SHOE STRIKE THREATENS

Haverhill, Jan. 28.—Forecast of another break in the shoe industry, threatening to wreck the apparent amicable settlement of workers' and manufacturers' differences, was made today when more than 500 members of one local union refused to accept proposals offered by the citizens' committee to end the shoe strike. More than 4,000 workers in 42 factories are affected.

Two other shoe crafts, the three representing more than 2,500 workers, later voted against the peace plan.

Today's meeting included the Machine Operators and Finishers' Local No. 1, Shoe Workers' Protective Union. The gathering was addressed by John D. Nolen, general president of the union, and Attorney Joseph Bearak, counsel.

The McKay and Welt Workers and the Packers followed suit.

The strikers were to return to their benches Monday, when it was expected all would abide by the provisions of the proposals. Today's action, with other meetings scheduled late today and tonight, has opened the breach just as wide again.

B. & O. PRESIDENT, 67, SAYS HE'S "ONLY FIFTY"

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Although today was the 67th anniversary of the birth of Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, at his office today he preferred to rate it this way:

"I am 50 years old. That is my viewpoint, and it should be. My outlook shall continue to be one of a man of 50 years of age."

Boy Scout to Join Byrd South Pole Expedition

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A Boy Scout may accompany Commander Richard Byrd, U. S. N., on his proposed trip to the South Pole, James E. West, chief Scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, announced at a regional conference here.

West said that Commander Byrd had extended an invitation for "one of the older boys" to accompany him, and that the offer had been accepted. No announcement was made as to the method of selecting the Scout who would be assigned on the trip."

U. S. TOLLS ON CAPE CANAL

Washington, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Interested persons have been informed by the War Department that no tolls will be charged for passing through the Cape Cod canal when the government takes possession of the waterway as provided in recent legislation.

The date when the canal will pass into custody of the War Department is indefinite as title to the property is still in process of examination. The War Department has no plans for widening or deeping the canal.

'BOSSY' IN N. Y. TO SEE THAT GUY WALKER; FLAYS COPS

"Are you going to visit Mayor Walker?" somebody asked.

"Sure. One thirty Monday."

WHAT'S WRONG WITH N. Y.?

"Wh[illegible] didn't you visit him today?"

"Couldn't sleep long enough—nervous."

"Will you do the night clubs, in official fashion?"

"Not in official fashion or even in a swallow-tail," "Bossy" replied. "I don't drink, smoke or chew, and those high-falutin' dishes you get there might get me in bad habits."

"What do you think of New York?"

"You've got too many cops, too many electric signs, and enough clocks, too much law, plenty of the street, a Mayor who gets more space in the papers than the Mayor of Newburyport, Mass., and a darn fine start toward buildin' up a tea community."

WOMEN NOT SO BAD.

"Are you married?"

"My only troubles are official ones."

"Do you contemplate marrying?

"Well, I'm not so bad to look at," said "Bossy," stroking his sandy hair and bulging his muscles again. "I reckon I'm not a sheik, but I've got a few dollars. I'm a big boy in Newburyport, and after all, some of these New York women aren't bad."

"Have you ever been married?"

"I MADE COPS BEHAVE."

"I'm only thirty one years old. This business of young folks running off into matrimony causes too much trouble as it is."

"Bossy" then explained in detail how he happened to be Mayor of Newburyport.

"I have a gasoline station and garage business," he said. "I bought a house in the swell part of town and started to build a filling station.

"The Zoner told me I couldn't, so I gave him a sock on the chin and he took a cue.

"Well, they locked me up, but when I got out I went out to beat him, and I did.

"Now, I've made the town a fit place to live in and I can have all the filling stations I want, and I've cut down the speed of the town cops, believe me.

"A man can put on his hat in Newburyport now without having a cop tell him how."

"Bossy" expects to remain in New York several days. When he goes to Boston he has a score to settle with a policeman of Everett before returning to his official duties at Newburyport.

TAGGED IN EVERETT.

"I parked my car in the street in front of [illegible] there," he said, "and when I got up the next [illegible] was not [illegible]. Now I've got to settle that thing when I get back to Boston.

"That's the trouble with cops. They know more about tags than the postmaster of a Fed Cross encampment. If they knew less about tags and more about crooks, they might earn their salt.

"The only time they ever catch anything is when the [illegible] are standing still. Th[illegible] only place some of these guys could catch cold would be in Duluth, where the weather stays till August and gives 'em more time."

As yet "Bossy" has had no experience with New York policemen, but he's convinced there's too many of them.

Amassed Fortune by 35 Years Hard Toil

"Save a little money and don't be afraid to work," is the advice to young men of Massimino Cataldo, one-time immigrant boy, who has retired with a fortune of half a million dollars at the age of 54.

Cataldo, who came to the United States 35 years ago with $7 in his pocket, has just sold his interest in the Upham's Corner Market to his partners, John and Paul Cifrino, for $250,000, and intends to spend his declining years in ease.

"Don't be afraid to work," said he. "That's the big thing. I owe my success to work. When we had a store in South Boston I worked 23½ hours on Saturdays, starting at 2 a. m. Saturday and getting through at 1 a. m. Sunday.

Don't look at the clock. Save your money and that money later will give you an opportunity to go into business.

"There is plenty of opportunity right now for every young man who wants to take advantage of it.

ADVICE TO EMPLOYES

Some time ago in addressing 450 employes of our market I told them:

"'Save a little money, and by and by you will be all right. Think of the rainy day now, as when you're too old you're too old. I was like you once.'

"Some of them took my advice and now they are doing well.

"Shortly after I arrived in the United States I became an employe of a candy factory in Boston at $6 a week. That was 35 years ago when I was 19. After working eight or nine years in the candy factory I saved $900. I went to John Cifrino and said to him: 'I understand you are looking for a good partner. I, too, am looking for a good partner.'

"I put $300 of my $500 into the business on Battery street with Cifrino. We sold meats, groceries and vegetables and remained there five years.

"To save money we used to carry goods from the wholesale market to our store ourselves. Frequently I would carry a barrel of cabbages, a box of pork or a couple of veal on my shoulders to save express.

MISS INNES IS BRIDE OF STUDENT

Miss Constance Innes, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Charles H. Innes, was married at noon today to Stanley L. Stevens of Ann Arbor, Mich., at her father's home, No. 197 Bay State road. Miss Innes and Stevens attempted an elopement on January 6, going to Mansfield, but Innes learned of the attempt and persuaded them to return home and be married here.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eugene R. Shippen of the Second Unitarian Church, formerly minister of a church in Detroit which Stevens attended.

In accordance with the wish of the couple for a quiet ceremony, the guests were limited to Mr. and Mrs. Innes, Charles J. Innes and Hiller Innes, brothers of the bride; Miss Betty Riddle of New York, a classmate of Miss Innes, and Dr. Lewis P. Felch and Dr. Carrie Innes Felch, her uncle and aunt.

After the ceremony the couple departed for Ann Arbor, via Niagara Falls and Detroit, and will live at No. 640 Oxford road, Ann Arbor.

They had planned to be married in June, but recently Stevens decided to leave Harvard, where he is a student, and return to Michigan.

U. S. Baroness

Anne Meredith, who divorced Stephen Sohier Bigelow of Boston, became an actress and later married Sir Charles Sackville West. The latter today became fourth Baron Sackville by the death of his brother in England.

EX-BOSTON GIRL NOW BARONESS IN ENGLAND

Sevenoaks, Kent, England, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Lord Sackville, owner of Knole, one of the finest Elizabethan homes in England, died today of a heart attack following influenza and pneumonia. The heir to the barony is his brother, Major-General Sir Charles Sackville-West, who married Mrs. Anne Meredith Bigelow, American actress, in 1924.

Lady Sackville-West divorced her first husband, Stephen Sohier Bigelow, of Boston, in Paris in July, 1923. Under the stage name of Anne Meredith she played in several Broadway successes, including "Polly With a Past," "Seven Chances," "The Richest Girl" and "The Cub."

Food Hoarding Boosts Prices

Moscow, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Moscow is experiencing a certain amount of shortage in butter, eggs, tea, copper, soaps and textiles. These articles can be purchased at fancy prices in the market place only, most stores having little or none to offer. The authorities say that the shortage is due largely to the hoarding of staples by peasants, who are holding them for higher Spring prices.

ARRESTED WITH BAG OF RESTAURANT LOOT

Blondes Vs. Brunettes — In Life's Oldest Game — The Situation of Love

IS SHE MORE RESPONSIVE?
Now that a professional man is planning to test whether blonde or brunette is more responsive to love situations our attention is more than ever on the fair sex. Here's Billie Dove, a charming brunette.

BUT FOR A CHOICE
Lovely Dorothy Mackail is blonde and beautiful and it seems that on numerous occasions in the realm of the screen she has risen to heights in her love situations. Her love is stimulating.

HOW A BLONDE RESPONDS
Vilma Banky, in this scene with Ronald Colman, shows just how well a blonde can respond in a strong love situation. The honors aren't all with the brunettes and delectable Vilma is a living example that this fact is the plain and simple truth.

SHE'S ALWAYS A FAVORITE
In the brunette lineup in this ancient game of love is found pretty Clara Bow, who photographs as a brunette and never disappoints in love situations. But, whist, in real life Clara's hair is red.

ANOTHER BLONDE CHAMPION
Esther Ralston, a beautiful blo...e, also has proved on stage and screen that the blondes are equal to love situations. She is one of the favorites of America when it comes to love scenes.

RUNAWAY GIRL HELD IN LOUISIANA "MET" MISSING FRANCES

CONFIDED SECRET TO HER

thing—that a state of conference had been reached where a more intimate knowledge of the girl's home and college life was desired.

Although no official announcement was forthcoming from today's conference it was learned that more than 200 "clues" had been eliminated at the round table discussion. A stenographer has taken down everything said.

A number of mothers and fathers of girls in college here arrived in the city today to spend the week-end with their daughters.

While the storm swept down from the Berkshires, the semi-invalid mother of the missing heiress remained in her hotel room here, alone for the first time in two weeks, with no sorrow made more poignant today by sudden wrecking of a new hope.

FALSE HOPE RAISED.

During the 15 days that have elapsed since her daughter's disappearance, her attention, husband has carefully guarded her against reports that would raise any false hope within her mind. But today Mrs. Smith learned of a report that Frances would be produced in Troy, N. Y., at 11 a. m.

The announcement was attributed to a deputy sheriff there. Officials placed a great deal of credence in it. It was known that for two days the sheriff had been following a girl he believed the missing student.

Mrs. Smith was notified of the announcement. She greeted the news joyously. Then, while her hopes were highest, came word that the announcement was all the result of a joke. The reaction nearly resulted in her collapse.

From other sources, however, came hope that the college student was still alive.

The first was the startling statement of a runaway girl held in Covington, La., that she had been working through the South in company with two Smith College student who vanished two weeks ago yesterday.

The second was the positive statement of Dr. Lydiard H. Horton, Boston psycho-analyst employed by Miss Smith's family, that he was satisfied the girl was not a suicide.

The story placing Frances in the South was told by Helen Coss, a fourteen-year-old girl, who ran away from her home in Buffalo, Pa., and it now held at Covington awaiting the arrival there of her parents. The girl declared she and Miss Smith had worked side by side distributing gum in the South in the advertising campaign of a manufacturer.

Three men of the small army of State Detectives at work on the mystery of the girl who has been missing since January 15, have been ordered to be ready to leave for the South at a moment's notice, following a report from the police of the Louisiana town as to the truth of the Coss girl's story.

This girl told her questioners in Covington that she had been hired to give away the chewing gum and to visit various cities through the middle Atlantic States. On January 15 she was given a companion, and at that time she had heard nothing of the disappearance of Frances Smith.

The two girls grew friendly and finally, after they had worked together for a few days, according to the Coss girl, her companion told her that her name was Frances St. John Smith, that her parents were wealthy, and that she had run away from Smith College to prove to her parents and professors that she could make her own way in the world.

The Coss girl said that they had been separated somewhere in Pennsylvania when each received orders to report at different cities, though she believes that Frances is somewhere in the South.

While Covington police said they believed the girl was telling the truth, her parents were inclined to give little credence to the story.

NOTED DOCTOR STUDIES CASE.

Dr. Horton was "Frances St. John Smith" today, that is, as far as it was possible for him to do so, he was looking upon life with the mental attitude of the Smith College girl before she disappeared. The student's family have great confidence that the eminent psychologist may solve the case and have given him carte blanche in the New York home, where he is associating himself with every intimate concern of the missing heiress.

The fact that already he has expressed himself as satisfied that the freshman did not commit suicide has greatly heartened Mrs. St. John Smith, who, with her husband, continues to remain in seclusion, awaiting a favorable development, which they feel certain is bound to come.

SEEK HIDING PLACE.

Her low scholastic standing was apparently the cause of Miss Smith's disappearance from the conclusions already drawn by Dr. Horton. This means that in addition to his certainty that the girl was not a suicide he likewise believes she was not a victim of foul play and that accidental death is not the solution of the mystery.

The resulting action from depression, caused by the girl's low scholastic standing, might be either self-destruction or running away, he said, but he cannot discover the existence of a depression great enough to have caused the girl to kill herself.

A theory of psycho-analysis known as "purposive psychology" will next be brought into play by Dr. Horton to establish a locality where the girl, with a normal person's likes and dislikes, married tendencies and preferences, might have sought seclusion after having forsaken her family and her studies.

FOLICE FEAR SHE IS DEAD.

Explaining this theory, the psychologist said: "The recent repertion of human motives enables us to piece together a very constructive picture which may show that it was simply a state of emotion which led to a state of confusion and failure and that some course of resulting action may be figured out."

While Dr. Horton has described the probability of death from any one of the three possible theories, accident, foul play or suicide, the same is not true of police and State authorities involved.

By no means has the possibility that the missing student was slain been abandoned by the investigators and a statement of the Smith College publicity office that no students have been "shut out" by a campus prowler is greatly discounted by the statement of Superintendent King that several girls were "accosted."

ON TRAIL OF 'HUGGER.'

The further statement of the college superintendent that the accoster is believed to be a young man recently graduated along the same thing is considered sufficient evidence that college authorities are aware of a number of previous incidents. Superintendent King, despite the college publicity office statement, announced that because of the campus intruder he recently had engaged extra watchman for night duty.

The police are still actively pursuing this angle of the case and two men are under suspicion, one the man previously caught and whom the college refused to prosecute and the other, whose identity is not as clearly established, a former employe of the institution.

ELIMINATE KIDNAP THEORY.

Although a great deal of secrecy surrounds both yesterday's and today's conferences of the State authorities, local police and representatives of the Smith family, it is known that one theory has been definitely eliminated—the kidnaping-for-ransom possibility. But this theory is believed the only one not remaining in the investigation.

Boy Scouts were out along the Connecticut River today, as they have been every Saturday since Miss Smith vanished, keeping sharp eyes open in the possibility that if the body of the 21 student is in the water it may possibly come to the surface.

No dragging was undertaken by the State troopers today as a result of the storm.

Didn't Produce Smith Girl Because He Couldn't

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Frances St. John Smith, missing Smith College student, was not produced today by Deputy Sheriff James Golden because Golden did not have any such girl to produce.

Golden told an Associated Press reporter that earlier in the day he had jokingly told Patrolman William Switzer that he was going to have the girl at the jail at 11 o'clock, and that at that time he did not believe that the patrolman would take the matter seriously.

From other sources it was learned that Golden had been shadowing a girl who he believe was Miss Smith but who proved to be another person.

VET KILLS SELF ON DARE OF HIS TWIN BROTHER

North Belchertown, Jan. 28.—Frank Avery, World War hero, is dead, a suicide to prove to his twin brother, Harold (not he had not lost "the g in" on a won him honors with the Marines at Chateau Thierry.

His twin, Harold, is locked up in the local jail, technically held for questioning by the medical examiner, but in reality kept under guard to restrain him from committing suicide in order to join his brother, from whom he was never separated during their 40 years of life save in the exigencies of war.

Harold Avery is also a World War veteran, serving in France with an engineers' unit.

The surviving twin made one desperate effort to follow his brother into eternity by slashing his throat with a razor, but a neighbor interfered just as the keen blade reached the man's throat.

Frank had been drinking too much. Harold remonstrated with him. Frank answered: "I am going to continue drinking, and if you don't give me liquor, I'll shoot my self."

Harold answered with a sneer, "You won't kill yourself. The drink has robbed you of the guts you had when you were a soldier."

Harold had written his twin's death sentence with these words:

Harold went to the cellar to get some wood, and was startled by a shot. He ran upstairs and found his brother unconscious, a slug from a shotgun having entered his body near his heart. The distracted man bent over his brother, kissed him, and begged him to speak, but Frank Avery never spoke again.

The brother ran from the house and brought a neighbor, Warren Converse, back to the house with him. As they entered Harold Avery broke into fresh sobs as he saw his brother's pet dog a Spitz, standing faithfully over the body of his master.

Then it was that Harold seized the razor and attempted to cut his throat.

All through the night Harold Avery wept in his cell, blaming himself for his brother's death.

COSGRAVE REMARKS REAL WINTER AT VALLEY FORGE

Philadelphia, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—William T. Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State, made a brief visit today to Cardinal Dougherty, after he placed a wreath on the statue of John Wanamaker on City Hall Plaza, then was taken to Valley Forge, where Washington and his army made their Winter encampment.

"How appropriate the day," said Cosgrave, as he looked at the heavy skies and whirling snowflakes. Mr. Cosgrave arose at 7 a. m. and, accompanied only by his aide, Colonel Joseph O'Reilly, walked to the Church of St. John the Evangelist three blocks from his hotel, and attended mass.

morning the front door bell rang and on opening the door I saw the man in question. He said he had not slept all night and asked me if he could go down stairs and clean.

"I said 'Yes,' and went downstairs to my office. He got to work next and came upstairs, and I asked him to have some dinner with me. He said 'No,' he was going out and would have some coffee at a restaurant.

"He returned about 12:30 and came up into my apartment. He was there until my wife and I left at 2:30 to look over the exhibit next saw him at about 6:30, when my wife and I came in the front door. He was standing in the hall way. I went downstairs to take care of my fires and he came with me.

"Before I went down he said: 'You got a call from Suite 4 and Suite 8. They want you.'

HE CALLS UP.

"I went up to the two suites and didn't have time to do the work they wanted done. Then I went to my own suite to change my clothes and shoes. About 7:15 my friend who had remained in the basement came up. He opened the door of my suite and said:

"'I guess I'll be going along.' He took his hat and coat and went out. He looked excited and nervous.

"About 7:45 the pay station phone in the lobby rang and I answered it. It was my friend. He said: 'Is anybody been looking for me?' I said, 'No.' And he hung up without saying any more."

SENATE COM. TO HEAR MINE WORKERS' PROBE

Washington, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, with but five members present, voted today to hold hearings on the Johnson resolution calling for an investigation of United Mine Workers' charges that the New York Central, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio Railroads were engaged in an alleged "conspiracy" to beat down coal prices and miners' wages.

Hearings also were ordered on the Brookhart resolution for an inquiry into an alleged "movie trust." It was requested by the independent producers and theatre owners.

DEAN ARCHER TO PRESIDE AT UPSHAW-ELY DEBATE

Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School will preside at the debate in Somerville High School auditorium Tuesday evening, February 14, between former Congressman William D. Upshaw of Atlanta, Ga., and Joseph R. Ely of Westfield, former district attorney of western Massachusetts. The debate will be on the question, "Resolved, that Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York should be the nominee of the Democratic party in 1928." Ely will take the affirmative and Upshaw the negative. There will be a concert from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

BRITISH FLIER TO HOP IN AMERICAN PLANE

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A Stinson airplane in which Captain W. G. R. Hinchcliffe, British aviator plans to attempt a nonstop flight from London to Rangoon, India, was shipped on the Cunard liner Aquitania, which sailed for Europe early today.

The plane was similar to the airplane American Girl, flown by Ruth Elder and Captain George Haldeman, in their unsuccessful attempt to fly to Europe.

Rounded Figures Are Coming Back, Says Ziegfeld

Chicago, Jan. 28 (I. N. S.).—Florenz Ziegfeld famous glorifier of American girls tossed a choice morsel to starving femininity today with his prediction that "curves" are coming back.

He declared the public is tired of the straight lines that often become angles and now demand women with rounded figures.

3 COPS HURT IN REVERE CRASH

John P. Starkey and Dominick Church on the rear seat, was responding to a raid call at North Revere, and had just left the station when the accident occurred.

Rogers sustained injuries to his left arm and barely saved himself from death when he slid from beneath the steering wheel to the off side of the car. Church suffered cuts on his left arm and leg and Starkey was cut by flying glass.

The truck driven by Joseph T. Green of Sixth street, South Boston, is owned by a parcel delivery company. It turned into Pleasant street from Broadway as the police car was passing. Snow on the street caused it to skid and hit the police car sidewise.

The impact sent the police car hurtling onto the sidewalk where it tipped toward the large show window of the beauty parlor where five girls were in the chairs.

The truck finally settled back on the sidewalk with windshield smashed, radiator and mudguards torn off and generally crushed on the left side.

ATTACKED GIRL LEFT AT DOOR OF FOLEY

As District Attorney William J. Foley was poring over a perplexing law case at his home early today he was startled by a piercing scream and, looking from a window, he suddenly saw a girl run from a speeding automobile and fall unconscious on the sidewalk in front of his home.

The district attorney at once hurried the girl into his house, and then telephoned the police.

Just as he entered his home with the girl in his arms, the Suffolk county executive heard another scream, saw the automobile stop, and another girl fled from the machine, but by no such dramatic means as the first girl had failed into play.

The girl rescued by the district attorney was Helen Malone, 20 years old, of No. 256 Broadway, South Boston, while the girl with her was Della Sexton, 22 years old, of No. 324 E street, South Boston.

The Malone girl was taken to the Carney Hospital for treatment, while the police of Station 6 went out in search of the two young men accused by the girls.

They said that two men in an expensive automobile had invited them for a ride on Broadway and they accepted. They drove to a cafe on Hayward place, and early this morning, they said, induced the men to take them home.

Near the Foley home at E and Fourth streets the young men became objectionable, and the Malone girl leaped from the car. The Sexton girl so terrified the men by her screaming that they stopped the car and allowed her to alight.

THREE HURT IN CRASH OF TRUCK AND TROLLEY

Three men were injured and a number of passengers shaken up when a motor truck and trolley car collided today in Main street, Charlestown. The injured are Lawrence M. White, twenty-four, of Chadwick street, Roxbury, operator of the truck, contusion of legs and body; John M. McLaughlin, twenty-eight of Great street, head and shoulder contusions of leg and concussion of the brain; Bernard Lafferty, Grant court, Charlestown, slightly injured. Lafferty was taken home after treatment by a physician. White and McLaughlin were taken to Baystate Relief Station.

NAB 150-GALLON REVERE STILL; THREE ARRESTED

Three men were arrested, a 150-gallon still was dismantled and more than 2,000 gallons of liquor were seized by Revere officers today when they raided a tenement on the top floor of a three-story dwelling on Primes street, Revere.

The men arrested, who were captured after trying to escape, gave their names as Henry Meters, 28, of Willard avenue, Medford; Henry Sessano, 30, of 50 Sewell, Medford, and John Hicon, 37, of Mountain avenue, Revere. All three were held under charges of manufacturing, keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

WOMEN STAGE 'EQUAL RIGHTS' PLEA AT PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY

DELEGATES PAY HERO TRIBUTE

The first public demonstration for women's rights before the statesmen of the Americas was staged today in connection with the international celebration of the birthday of Jose Marti, hero of Cuban independence.

More than two hundred North American and Latin-American women, carrying banners demanding women's rights, circled the statue of the Cuban leader and passed in review before President Machado of Cuba and the delegates.

Twenty-one white-clad women representing the twenty-one republics of the new world marched in the parade. Homing pigeons carrying the message of "equal rights" were released in the course of the ceremonies.

Addresses were delivered by Senora Pilar Jorge De Tella of Havana and Miss Doris Stevens of Washington. The theme was that "Pan-American-ism will not succeed without the women."

The delegates of all the republics assembled in the imposing auditorium or grand hall of the University of Havana for special services in memory of Marti.

SNOW BLANKETS HUB STREETS

and a white shimming of flakes was visible on the streets.

The official temperature at 3 o'clock was 22, six degrees warmer than yesterday at the same hour, while Atlanta, Ga., was suffering at 38 and Pensacola, Fla., shivering at 52.

The storm, which is moving northeastward up the coast, left six inches of snow in Washington, where the official mercury registered only 26.

To date in Boston this Winter there has been less than one inch of snow, but the present storm is expected to make up for the shortage to a considerable extent.

Sub-zero temperature in Chicago today caused the death of three men and one woman.

Rudolph Kroft, 26, of St. Louis, was so numbed by the cold while stealing a ride on a train that he fell under the wheels and was killed.

In Washington snow, which began falling during the night, was banked seven or eight inches on the streets.

ACOSTA FREED FROM CONNECTICUT JAIL

New Haven, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Bert Acosta, transatlantic pilot, was set free by Judge Walter M. Pickett in Common Pleas Court today. Acosta, arrested, fined and sentenced in Naugatuck for flying lower than the aviation laws allow, then admitted to appeal bonds, but detained in jail by virtue of a New Jersey warrant charging him with larceny of the plane "Spitfire," was released when the court sustained a demurrer, filed by his counsel, which contended he was being held in the jail without proper process.

RADIO PHOTOGRAPHS FOR HOME USE TESTED

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—A series of experiments to perfect a receiver of radio photographs suitable for home use will be started Tuesday morning by Stanton Wood, J. L. Whittaker, an associate of Austin G. Goldsborough, inventor of the apparatus to be used, said 25 receivers for intercepting photographs had been distributed among competent experimenters in New York and New Jersey. Whittaker said the experiments were designed to determine any existing weakness in the apparatus before placing it on the market.

BAY STATE GIRL IN COMA FOR NINE DAYS

Painesville, O., Jan. 28 (I.N.S.)—Physicians were still puzzled today over the peculiar case of Miss Helen L. Buschmann, 19, of Westfield, Mass., who has been unconscious since January 16 when she was struck by a bus and sustained a fractured skull.

She failed to regain consciousness after doctors succeeded in partly relieving pressure on her brain, and is being kept alive at Memorial Hospital through artificial feeding.

$12,000 GARAGE FIRE AT BEVERLY FARMS

Fire which for a time threatened the business section of Beverly Farms, today swept through the Trowt & Marra Central Square Garage with a loss of $12,000. The fire, which started from a chimney, was so threatening that a second alarm was sounded, calling all the apparatus from the Central Station. The automobiles stored in the garage were saved by firemen and volunteer workers.

5 MORE LOOMFIXERS IN STRIKE AT FALL RIVER

Fall River, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Five loom fixers at the textile plant of the Stevens Manufacturing Company who remained to do "changing over" work when 18 fellow loomfixers struck with the weavers several days ago, walked out today to give the weavers 100 per cent. support. Endorsement of the move was given by the union.

WORKED, SAVED, HAS $500,000

"At the end of five years we went to 490 Broadway, South Boston, where we had a good-sized store. We were there five years, and from there we went to Upham's Corner, Dorchester, in 1914, where the market has been ever since.

"I have made about half a million and I have enough. I intend to go to California for three or four months, and then I will return to Boston and enjoy myself. I will not go back to Italy."

Mr. Cataldo, who lives at No. 17 Virginia street, Dorchester, presented to St. Anthony's Church, Revere, a marble altar costing $7,240, the marble having been imported from Italy. He also presented an organ which cost $5,000 for the church in his native town of Chiusano, Italy, where his cousin, Father Raphael Cataldo, is priest.

HUB MAN TRAPPED BY HIMSELF IN AUTO THEFT

A telegram from an automobile concern in Florida caused the arrest in Boston today of George Grinnick, 24, Hotel Avery, for larceny of an expensive automobile belonging to Harold C. Buckminster of Beacon street. The machine was stolen January 14 in Piedmont, S. C.

Inspector George Augusta says Grannick sold the machine in Florida for $600. He received $125 cash and was given authority to draw the rest in Boston by draft. Before completing this final arrangement it was necessary to communicate with the owner of the car, who had given his name as Buckminster. It was in this way the real Mr. Buckminster discovered what had become of his automobile.

LEJEUNE PRAISES HIS MARINES IN NICARAGUA

Managua, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Two sets of military orders, one signed by the rebel General, Augustino Sandino, and the other by Major-General John A. Lejune, commander of the American Marines, today told of the successes of the Marines in their campaign against Sandino.

The papers signed by Sandino were seized by Marines after their occupation of his last known stronghold on the mountain, El Chipote. They indicated that his forces suffered greatly in the air attack staged by Marines on January 14. They stated that his forces were somewhat demoralized and that Sandino himself was quite confused.

POLICE RUSE OPENS DOOR IN NASHUA GAMBLING RAID

Nashua, N. H., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—By placing his hand over the peephole, then ringing the signal bell, a patrolman leading a raiding squad aroused the curiosity of the doorkeeper at the Nashua Driving Club early today so that he unbarred the door. The officers swarmed into the club. Three men pleaded guilty to playing cards for money and were fined $10 each. Officers commandeered the entire fittings of the rooms.

HELD IN $10,500 BAIL FOR TWO BURGLARIES

Preston F. REVERE SCHOOL TEACHERS GET PAY RAISE

While the Revere school committee was settling the much mooted question of a school superintendent by appointing a man who was educated there, pay raises for more than 100 school teachers were revealed in the annual budget amounting to $733,413.30 submitted by William C. McGinnis, whose resignation is effective next Wednesday.

Carl Lindahl, principal of the High School, assumes the duties of superintendent next Thursday morning at a salary of $5,000, an increase of $1,500. The appointment came after Frank E. Moore, supervisor of State education, and John Davis head of the Needham job, refused appointment because the vote was not unanimous.

Augustine Whelan, acting principal, succeeds Lindahl as principal of the high school.

The budget totals last year's by $90,669.35, one-fifth of which provides for the increases granted new members of the staff with this month's payday and the remaining 200 teachers later in the year.

Pilotless "Ghost Plane" to Span U. S. Twice

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28 (I.N.S.)—Winging its way through space as the "Flying Dutchman" of sailing lore plowed ghostlike through the clouds, a phantom airplane, minus pilot or passenger, will fly next June from New York to Los Angeles and return—if plans made public today by Robert L. Mack, radio engineer, do not miscarry.

Mack, who has startled thousands of people in the West by sending a driverless automobile whirling through crowded city streets, declared he is on the eve of perfecting control of a ghost airplane by radio, operated from another airship flying 2,000 feet behind.

"I want to demonstrate conclusively to the government," he said, "that in time of war bombing planes can be controlled by radio from another ship miles distant and that the bombs also can be released by radio."

The phantom plane with which Mack is experimenting here is a model of standard size, with a 36-foot wing spread, a Wright Whirlwind motor and capacity of one thousand pounds.

Instead of dual control, however, the plane is equipped with two wheels, one to acquire altitude, the other to steer. Both wheels and the gas supply will be controlled from the distant guiding plane piloted by I. B. Reed.

SCHWAB, OFF TO EUROPE, PREDICTS PROSPERITY

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, sailed for Europe today on the Cunard liner Aquitania.

He said conditions in the steel industry were excellent and predicted continued prosperity for 1928. He planned to spend six weeks in England, France and on the Riviera.

AUTOIST DROWNS WHEN ICE BREAKS; ONE SAVED

Pittsburg, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—One fisherman was drowned and another escaped today when an automobile they were driving across Shirley reservoir crashed through the ice. The driver, believed to have been Clayton Spaulding of Laurelburg, twenty-six, was unable to free himself. His companion, Captain John S. Hayes, also of Laurelburg, swam to safety.

DIRIGIBLES CAN FUEL AT SEA, TEST PROVES

Washington, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Naval officials were able today to explain in more detail the feat of the airship Los Angeles in making a test landing yesterday on the deck of the airplane carrier Saratoga almost miles off Newport.

The landing was carried out, it was explained, when both the giant air craft and the new airplane carrier headed into the wind at fifteen knots an hour each. Three lines were dropped from the forward part of the dirigible to the aft deck of the Saratoga which were seized by members of the ship's crew. The forward part of the dirigible was brought near the decks until the control car actually rested on the broad, level deck.

Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of naval aviation, said that the test experiment showed how the operating radius of the dirigible could be increased through the fueling at sea from ships similar to the Saratoga. He said that had it been necessary yesterday the Los Angeles could have taken on fuel from the Saratoga.

COOLIDGE NOW WANTS HONOR FOR SUMMERALL

Washington, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge has recommended the highest possible military rank for Major-General Charles P. Summerall, after having summarily recalled him from the Pacific coast, where the officer was demounding Army housing conditions.

The title of General of the Army—a rank heretofore held in active service only during war would be given Summerall under legislation approved by Mr. Coolidge.

The President's views were explained in a letter from the director of the budget to the military committees of Congress as follows:

"I have submitted this matter to the President, who has instructed me to advise you that if the proposed legislation be amended so as to provide only for increased rank for the chief of staff of the army, and eliminate the provisions affecting the present chief of staff, it would meet with his approval and would not be in conflict with his financial program."

"A QUALITY CAR AT THE LOWEST PRICE IN OUR HISTORY"

Back of the perfected Whippet is an unequaled array of performance records—conclusive evidence of Whippet's mechanical superiority over all light cars.

The Whippet holds the official A.A.A. Coast-to-Coast Economy Record with an average of 43.28 miles to a gallon of gasoline. No more dramatic proof of utmost fuel economy has ever been given.

Among 5,506 Whippet owners, in a national test, the average mileage was 38 miles to a gallon. Despite the most widely varying conditions this high average was obtained.

In a special speed test at Rockingham Park Speedway, a Whippet averaged 71.6 miles per hour. From Grand Rapids to Petoskey, Michigan, a Whippet beat the time of the fastest train by 3 hours, covering the 219 miles in 212 minutes. In a 135-mile Second Gear Run, a Whippet traveled 135 miles in 4 hours, 3 minutes, averaging 33.33 miles per hour.

And in Pittsburgh a Whippet climbed the 850-foot Seventeenth Street incline. The grade was from 37½ to 40% and the time, 46 seconds.

PROVED Superiority

When you buy a Whippet you buy a car which has stood the test of more than 500,000,000 miles of driving in the hands of owners—a car of advanced engineering design, with such features as big 4-wheel brakes, full force-feed lubrication, gasoline tank in rear, silent timing chain and many more.

Come in and see the perfected Whippet—now—today.

GARNER WEST IS EXCELLENT JUDGE OF HORSEFLESH, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Popular Guest of New Riding Club to Give Decisions in Eleven Classes at Hemenway Street Arena

MR. GARNER WEST, EMINENT JUDGE OF HORSEFLESH, WILL FIND EXERCISE for his most expert judgment in all the splendid horses entered for the New Riding Club Show this evening. Spirited mounts mincing around the tanbark ring, at the Clubhouse in Hemenway street, will include every favorite of practically every member. It's a "Members' Show," so only members may exhibit and the rivalry, though most friendly, is decidedly keen. Eleven classes afford range for all the favorites, ponies or timber toppers, and everything between.

FROM THE FIRST BUGLE, CALLING THE "Junior Jumpers" to the gate, right through to the "Pair Jumpers" at the finish, the gallery is promised thrills and endless interest. The "Challenge Cup" is in competition of the very keenest. Mrs. George Porter Hunter (Andrea Adie) won it in 1925; Miss Elizabeth Kimpton in 1926, and Miss Amelia Peabody in 1927. Three wins makes it a permanent possession. Mr. Reginald W. Bird is the donor. Then there are the Motley Cup and the Sears Cups.

SO MANY OF THE STILL VERY YOUNG SET entered their horses in the "Children's Saddle Class" it was found necessary to show it in two divisions. The "Touch and Go" and the "Pair Jumpers" promises to provide some pretty sport for riders and gallery. Miss Elizabeth Kimpton shows Tipperary, and Miss Elizabeth Shaw Sprague's pair of timber toppers, "Stonewall" and "Scarlet Rambler," will put up stiff competition. Mrs. Gardiner Fiske's "All Adrift" and Miss Betty Bird's "Nellie Morse" have many ribbons to their credit. They will make a pretty pair at the jumps.

GASTRONOMIC DELICACIES, EXECUTED with true Gallic ingenuity, will be set before luncheon guests at the first Christopher Shop affair of the season. And to give the thing piquancy, M. Gaston Thierry, chef of the Hotel Statler, directs the preparation, and during the luncheon itself will discourse on French cookery, its subtleties and its nuances. And last, but by no means least, M. Thierry has agreed, after due persuasion, to permit a number of guests to visit his domain while luncheon is being prepared.

TO HAVE ACCESS TO A FAMOUS CHEF while he prepares his chef d'oeuvre is a privilege not occurring every day. M. Thierry has exercised his culinary arts to the delectation of crowned heads and republican potentates. Furthermore, he has cooked savory dishes to serve up to generals of the Allies' High Command during the World War. So it is to be expected that he will polish off a Christopher Shop luncheon to everyone's entire satisfaction. It should be mere child's play to one so expert.

FEBRUARY 6, AND THE HOTEL STATLER, are the date and place. Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. Dana Estes, Miss Elinor de W. Jackson, Mrs. James A. Nelson, Mrs. George Swinnerton Parker, Mrs. Ernst M. Parsons, Mrs. Theodore B. Pitman, Mrs. Charles D. Voorhis and Miss M. M. Brackett are chiefs of arrangement. Mrs. J. Pennington Gardiner directs a Junior League bevy that, with its usual willingness, if not always with professional finish, serves as waitresses. Gratifying acceptances already are coming in for reservations —Mrs. Robert Treat Paine is bringing fourteen.

MRS. ROBERT TREAT PAINE, JUST MENTIONED, looked very trim and handsome as I met her taking a brisk constitutional. It was her regular before-luncheon promenade, and yesterday was prelude to a luncheon party that went on to Symphony Hall as so many good Bostonians do of a Friday afternoon. All in black, broadcloth and caracul, with a cluster of violets nestled at her throat, and pearls for ornaments (as she always has these beautiful jewels) Mrs. Paine brought pleasure to the eye of the beholder.

HER SYMPHONY GROUP INCLUDED MRS. J. MALCOLM FORBES, who arrived back only yesterday morning from New York. She was in the Big City visiting the younger Forbeses, Mr. and Mrs. John Malcolm, who are settled down for some time in Gotham while Mr. Forbes continues his theological studies. Mrs. Forbes was Miss Ethel Cummings, and the wedding ceremonial changing her name and status was a brilliant affair, highly interesting to many of Boston's first families when it was celebrated last June, in Trinity Church.

ALL THE PAINES AND ALL THE FORBESES, for that matter (together, these two family connections are a small army), have been flocking into the Grace Horne Gallery this week. A youthful Forbes and a youthful Paine (Mr. and Mrs. George Lyman Paine, Jr.) have an exhibition there, and proud relatives of the two (Mrs. Paine was Miss Ruth Forbes) have stormed the place. It is very interesting, and most unusual, to have a young man and his bride both artistically inclined, as are these two. And both successful at their metier.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE PAINE, JR., WENT abroad to live for a year or two, following their marriage. Work and study in Parisian ateliers brought them both into the "promising young artist" class. This week's exhibition is the result. Young Mrs. Paine came over from New York, to herself set up, with her own hands, this exhibition of her own and her husband's paintings. Since their return from abroad—they came home last June for the Cummings-Forbes wedding—Mr. and Mrs. Paine have been pursuing artistic careers in New York.

WHEN TALENTED RUSSIANS TURN THEIR attention to a Cabaret then are results brilliant in the extreme. I understand that luminaries from our Russian colony, singers, dancers, violinists, are staging a cabaret at the Women's Republican Club on February 9. Two or three Winters ago Boston's very best filled that same handsome ballroom and applauded to the echo an all-Russian cabaret, quite the finest thing Boston had seen in many a moon. If they repeat that enormous success February 9, there is a treat in store, certainly. Miss Gloria Braggiotti, doing a dance number, is the only un-Russian number of the entire evening.

HIS SON ALONE WITH IBANEZ AT DEATH

Mentone, France, Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Vicente Blasco Ibanez, whose "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" made him one of the wildest known of rantemporary writers, died in political exile of a complication of broncho-pneumonia and diabetis.

His son Igrido, who hurried by airplane from Barcelona when news of the gravity of his father's condition reached him, won the race with death by a scant two hours and was at the bedside when the end came in the Ibanez villa Fontana Rosa.

The author had been long suffering from diabetes and the malady had been yielding satisfactorily to treatment, and it was thought that there was no immediate danger. Then, while working in his garden a few days ago, he caught a cold which yesterday developed into pneumonia. The efforts of several doctors were unable to halt the disease and the end came quickly.

Ibanez might have resisted the pneumonia, said friends today, had not worry over reports that he was connected with the last Catalonian rising undermined his constitution.

"My greatest business seems to be denying that I have either been jailed by the Spanish or am plotting against Premier Primo de Rivera," Ibanez said a few days ago, adding a reiterated denial that he had any connection with various anti-royal Spanish plots discovered recently.

"While my sympathies are undeniably in favor of Spanish democracy, I have not permitted any person to use my name for such movements and I have not given any money toward them," Ibanez declared.

The Spanish writer's last work was a work of love, for it was by transforming his estate into the most beautiful on the Riviera to be left as a garden retreat for the writers of the world. He settled there four years ago and his first step was to remove all telephone wires. He placed a small tombstone where each telephone had been, declaring "the telephone and the radio are the world's greatest nuisances."

Gardeners brought from all parts of France made the estate a flower-field and Ibanez eventually ended their labors by engaging French sculptors to do a series of busts of the twelve world's most famous authors, including Shakespeare and Dickens, but noticeably lacking in Cervantes.

The villa was constructed without thought for material comfort, the sole aim being properly to house his books and manuscripts, of which he had the largest collection in southern France. No room in the villa was considered correctly furnished unless there were a thousand books lining its walls.

Vicente Blasco Ibanez, after attaining world-wide renown as a novelist, attracted attention as an opponent of King Alfonso and the government of Spain. His caustic attacks against the King led to his conviction for lese majeste, but Ibanez kept out of reach by exiling himself in France.

The effect of his campaign against the King and other government officials, including Primo De Rivera, military dictator of Spain, the novelist admitted, was to over throw the monarchy and set up a Republican form of government.

Unveil Phone Tablet

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A bronze tablet commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the opening here of the first commercial telephone exchange in the world was unveiled today on the Metropolitan Building, corner of State and Chapel streets.

Hear Ye! This Scot Gets His Bumps, but Knows His Arnica!

Liverpool, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—A Scotsman appeared before police court with his head swathed in bandages. He charged an Irishman with striking him with a kettle.

"That's all show," the Irishman protested to the judge. "He was walking about yesterday without bandages."

"Is that true?" the court asked.

"Yes," replied the Scotchman from his bandages.

"Why?" the judge demanded.

"To keep them clean for today."

CHAMBERLIN TO MAKE FOURTH TRY AT RECORD

New York, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—Clarence Chamberlin and Roger G. Williams will make their fourth attempt to break the world's duration flight record at Richmond, Va., early next week.

BRIDE OF PAUL BERLENBACH NO GOLD DIGGER

New York, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Paul Berlenbach, whose husband has begun legal action to have their marriage annulled today, blamed her marital difficulties on the boxer's parents.

The former light heavyweight champion's father and mother, she asserted in an interview, told their son and friends that she was a "gold digger" and had married "Paulie" for his money.

Mrs. Berlenbach, who is only 21, was Rose Mary O'Reilly, daughter of a retired real estate operator in Los Angeles. They were married there last April, before the "Astoria Assassin" gave up his ring career.

The fighter's bride said today that while she was visiting last Thursday at the home of a neighbor and friend, Mrs. Jack Zivic, a man walked in and served her with a notice that Paul had started action to have their marriage annulled. When she returned to the Berlenbach home at Pelham Manor that evening the doors were locked at 8 in the hallway of her home.

U. S. Girl Hiker Is Due in Montreal Tomorrow

Phillipsburg, Que., Jan. 28 (A. P.).—Mrs. Mary Messler Anderson, 35, . Manchester, N. H., accompanied by Albert Caron, her trainer, left here today on the next to last lap of their 300-mile hike from Manchester to Montreal.

They planned to reach St. Johns, 23 miles north of here today, and walk from St. Johns to Montreal tomorrow.

against him. She is now staying with Mrs. Zivic.

"Paul's parents have stolen his affections," she said. "They didn't like our marriage. He left them to set up our home and they thought they would lose most of the fortune he had made fighting.

"They must have convinced him that I married him for his money. They were talking that way to everybody and had people calling me a 'gold digger.'"

Mrs. Berlenbach declared she would love Paul just the same if he didn't have a cent."

Girl Robbed by Thug

Eleanor Reynolds, 18, living in Yarmouth street, reported to the police today that a man robbed her evening of the doors were locked at 8 in the hallway of her home.

LEAVES $12,000 TO SON ABSENT 20 YEARS

With his father's funeral scheduled for tomorrow, Fred Hersey, 38, believed to live in the vicinity of Syracuse, N. Y., was sought by police today to claim a $12,000 estate left by Charles W. Hersey of Brown street, Waltham, and formerly of Watertown.

Father and son have not met for more than 20 years, it was revealed by the man's death, though Fred, during the World War, appeared in Watertown in the uniform of the U. S. army to greet his parent, but failed to find him.

George Clark, Spruce street, undertaker, in charge of funeral arrangements for the 78-year-old father, requested police to locate the son so that the estate could be settled. The father was employed as a draftsman with the E. & C. Shirt Company, moving here with the company from Connecticut.

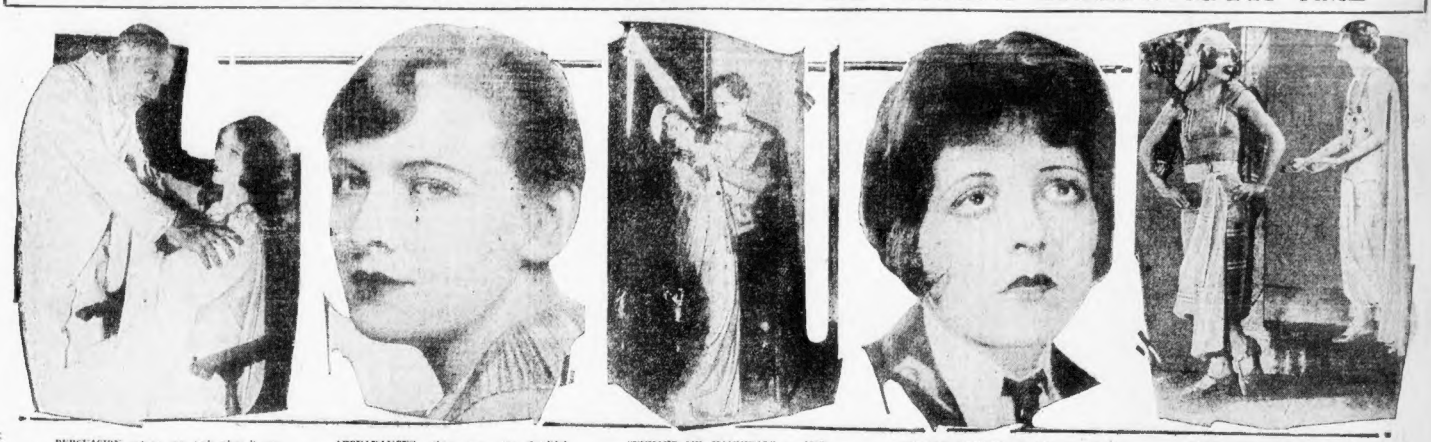
The Truth Will Out!

When Holbrook Blinn, in the sharply smart dialogue of Mr. Molnar's, "The Play's the Thing," at the Plymouth, explains the simple precepts of play writing to a certain character, that gentleman avers that any fool could write a drama. "Certainly," replies Blinn dryly, "many do."

No Place Like Rome

"The immediate cause," confesses Robert E. Sherwood, of "The Road to Rome," "was a house on East 71 Street, New York—a house with two mortgages. Feeling that no self respecting house should have more than one encumbrance, I had to do something to get rid of one of 'em."

THESPIS HALTS HER STEPS FOR SINGLE WEEK---ALL CURRENT DRAMAS MARK TIME



PERSUASION, not an easy task when it concerns a weeping prima donna, is expertly illustrated by Holbrook Blinn in this scene from that comedy gem, "The Play's the Thing." (Plymouth.)

APPEARANCES, they say, are deceitful. Kitty Kelly must portray a real rough girl in Frank Craven's sportive play, "The 19th Hole," at the Hollis. Kitty is good at golf and acting, too.

"UNHAND ME, HANNIBAL" are NOT the words spoken by Jane Cowl during this breathless scene. In "The Road to Rome" at the Wilbur you will see why.

WISTFUL WEEPING. In "Wings" at the Tremont, Clara Bow does a good cry for the director. It has been estimated that Clara, together with others, used up 18 gallons of fluent glycerine.

PUZZLE—which is the wistful lead'ng lady and which the slinky vamp? Correct answers must be correct, none others need apply. "Desert Song" at the Majestic (Ingeborg Torrup and Ethel Wright).

THEATRE PRODUCES ITS OWN HUNTSMEN

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IT is indeed a dull season that fails to yield the usual run of indoor events for the sprightly, forward looking play producer. Eternally, this gentleman is the hunt master of his profession—the sunrise chaser and, generally, the afternoon pursuer of the fleeting playwright and his wares. Of course, as things ramble along in the drama, play hunting is something of a closely centered sport—like following the hounds. Only a few of the favored ones may enter the lists; those who have plenty of money of their own and those who have been doubly blessed with rich and deceased parents.

REALLY, nothing in the clamor for glory, excitement and replenished riches matches the thrill, uncertainty and possible reward dangling just beyond the sniffing nostrils of the eager hunter for new plays. Naturally, there is a good deal of deadly routine to annoy and irk this modern Nimrod. Many of the operations follow established routes—usually the byways of easy resistance. As an example you always may expect the Provincetown Players or the Theatre Guild to take Eugene O'Neill on sight; no stalking of the quarry or employment of the smoke screen in these operations. And George C. Tyler, amplest of the season's producers, remains snugly at home, carefully devising new plans for the revivifying of some good old drama's Wistful's solid days. "Diplomacy" is the Tyler catch of this season.

AND so the hunt for new plays goes on interminably—it never ceases. From David Belasco, who begs only for a canvas dashed with life, to Jed Harris, who prays for nothing more substantial than red hot stuff for aching multitudes, the trembling young author—and some of his more matured brethren as well—becomes legitimate prey. The budding dramatist, by this time, should know what to do about it and insist upon royalty arrangements accordingly.

* * *

HERE in the old home town we, too, have an angling professor of the arts. The piercing eye of Mr. E. E. Clive, it appears, penetrates far beyond merely local boundaries—spans the seas, you might say. For even now Mr. Clive is finishing up what has been substantially a week-end hop to London to put the final and deciding clinch on "The Wrecker," a play by Arnold Ridley, whose "Ghost Train" tossed terror into the hearts of timid playgoers and persuaded brave men that it is safer not to wander too far from home after dark.

IT has been just a casual step to London for Mr. Clive. He sailed on January 5, spent two and a half days in London and on Monday retrips to Boston on the Calgaric. It seems like a strong dose of rough sailing on dangerous waters for a small prize, but you know how it is with our rush-to-go producers. Plays must be had and the price must be paid, either in stronger ing royalties or in two weeks of uncertain footing on tossing, shimmying liners. From the foregoing you might suspect that Mr. Clive is prepared, on short notice, to pay either or both penalties.

"Come Back to Erin" at the Arlington. (Second week.) Sentimental Irish drama fringed with cooing songs.

Like Washington, Mr. Hodge Sticks to Truth

"It's a mistake to tell dramatic lies," recently declared William Hodge, popular star of "Straight Thru the Door," which comes to the Plymouth for a limited engagement, begin ning a week from Monday. "What do I mean by dramatic lies? Why fooling the audience. Getting laughs by things which really do not belong to the play. You might fool an audience in the theatre, but you can't fool them outside. There are many plays which make people laugh in the theatre, but when they get outside they wonder what they laughed at.

Poor Pauline!

PAULINE STARKE is an exceedingly harassed heroine in "Streets of Shanghai," new film at the Modern and Beacon.

WILLING TO FLATTER

"While the old adage, "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," may apply to many things, Francine La Roque is not worrying about being described as "The Sophie Tucker of Burlesque." Francine is one of the "Pretty Babies" in the new show at the Gayety, and she is a singer of songs known as "blues." But inasmuch as Sophie Tucker came first, Miss La Rocque must bear up with the copyist designation. However, the little lady draws no inconsiderable amount of satisfaction from the reputation which has been imputed to her as one of the greatest figures in this type of song.

Francine La Roque

No Peach, No Performance of "The Play's the Thing"

In "The Play's the Thing," which Holbrook Blinn and his company are presenting at the Plymouth, there is one "prop" which ranks in importance with members of the cast.

It is a peach, described in the play as round, smooth, velvety and fragrant. Without the peach there is no play, which is what nearly happened once last season, when the property man discovered that the fast waning peach season had come to a close.

No imitation peach will do, for one of the actors must eat it at each performance. Despair seized the Frohman offices, for the city had been scoured in vain, but the day was saved by Frank Case, the genial host of the Algonquin Hotel, New York.

SIBELIUS IS FEATURE AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

With Serge Koussevitzky once more holding the conductor's baton, the Symphony concerts of this week resumes their regular course, even to a chance in the announced program. Brahms' "Academic" overture is substituted for the new Bock symphony, which is laid over for the next pair of programs.

The novelty is a group of six out of the eight Russian popular songs dressed up for orchestra by Liadov. The orchestration is in the approved Russian manner, which is almost to say the best manner, for these Russians certainly sense their music brilliantly. The tunes themselves are often familiar to the hearer of Russian symphonic and operatic music. After listening to the last of Liadov's settings, "General Dance," one begins to discover what inspired Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

Chief interest, however, is postponed to the second half of the concert, devoted to Sibelius' first symphony. To take the measure, so to speak, of Sibelius is an experience. One does not "rate" the great masters and Sibelius, of all living composers, certainly stands in the great line. Who since Brahms has made the melodic fertility, the epic sweep, the boldness and sureness of stroke that Sibelius exhibits in his very first excursion into the symphonic form?

Withal the man is thoroughly individual, doing his own way, pushing his canvases of Ice Ideal north in appropriately harsh colors.

GREAT RISKS TO MAKE "WINGS"

Lucien Hubbard, who but recently returned from the battlefields of San Antonio, Texas, was in that which is known as a conversational mood. Having supervised the production of "Wings," now at the Tremont, Mr. Hubbard is qualified to discuss dog fights like a chap who has spent all his life hanging around the Vaugn.

You see, a "dog fight" in this particular instance isn't a battle between your poodle and my hound. It's when 10 or 12 airplanes meet 'way up in heaven and start charges of battery and assault which are never brought up before a tribunal of justice.

"There is a real battle among the clouds in "Wings" photographed from a swift moving plane. In order to get the pictures it was necessary to fasten motor driven cameras to the wings of the airplanes and then aim the camera, and not the machine, at the desired scene.

Mr. Hubbard declared that the chances that were taken in order to give the dear public a real celluloid thrill are just nobody's business. The pictures was made with the cooperation of the army and air forces and every man from Uncle Sam's officers to assistant cameramen took more chances per day than a roulette hound let loose in Monte Carlo.

The earth was used as a background to the air instead of the vice, as is usually the case, and so, in order to have convincing air battles, there had to be dependable fights on the good old terra firma.

Opera Thrush

ROSA RAISA will raise her golden voice in the title role of "La Gioconda" at the Boston Opera House on Monday evening.

COPLEY HAS NEW PLAY

"This Woman Business," a comedy in three acts, written by Ben W. Levy, is announced for a brief engagement at the Copley beginning Monday night. With the exception of this exhilarating comedy Mr. E. E. Clive introduces a new member of his clientele in the person of Cecile Dixon, a pretty and talented English actress, seen in Boston on several occasions—the first time with George Arliss in "Old English," later with Katherine Cornell in "The Green Hat," and more recently with Pauline Lord in "Spellbound." Miss Dixon makes her bow before Copley audiences in the leading lady role.

ANNUAL FLURRY OF OPERA IN TOWN

AS welcome as Robin's return in the Spring are those mid-Winter songbirds from the West who annually bring opera to Boston. For the ensuing two weeks the Hub's great temple of song on Huntington avenue will be alive and aglow with the spirit only grand opera can stir. Boston is brushing up. Monday night it will step out. There will be opera hats, opera cloaks, opera gowns, opera jewels, opera glasses and opera manners—all for one flashing fortnight. The gallant and his lady will be there, the student and the business man, the artist and the dilettante. Everybody is going.

* * *

BESIDES the undying favorites the lusty "war horses" of Verdi, Wagner and Puccini—the first week will introduce a premiere, "A Witch of Salem." It is a real American opera, written by an American, and sung in English by American singers. Charles Wakefield Cadman, whose music is so thoroughly American that he has lived among the Indians to write it, is the composer. Nelle Richmond Eberhart wrote the book.

* * *

"A WITCH OF SALEM," of course, turns over a page of American history. The famous—and regrettable—delusion of witchcraft in Salem, during the troubled beginnings of the eighteenth century in Colonial Massachusetts, is the theme of the new music drama. It will make its bow Thursday evening at the Opera House. The repertoire for the first week follows:

* * *

MONDAY, "La Gioconda," with Rosa Raisa, Van Gordon and Marshall; Tuesday, "Sapho," with Mary Hackett and Mason; Wednesday matinee, "Lohengrin," with Kipnis and Maison; Wednesday night, "Tosca," with Muzio and Marcoux; Thursday, "A Witch of Salem," with Hackett and Mason (also "Pagliacci"); Friday, "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," with Mary Garden and ballet; Saturday matinee, "Romeo and Juliet," with Mason and Hackett; Saturday night, "Aida," with Marshall, Muzio and Kipnis.

"MY SON" AT ST. JAMES

Clara Joel, leading lady of the Keith-Albee stock company will be seen next week in "My Son," a tense drama of Cape Cod, written by Martha Stanley. It is in three acts. Miss Joel has played the role of Ana Silva in various parts of the country and won for herself a marked reputation for her skill.

The story concerns a widow, who is wooed by two men. One, Felipe Vargas, a Portugese. Walter Gilbert will play Felipe. The other is a Yankee sheriff (played by Frank Charlton), who loves the widow in "a protectin' way." Her problem is to choose between the two.

She has a son who, at the adolescent age, is coming under the influence of a modern flapper, Betty Smith. The author realizes that "the blood of a Portugese runs warmer than that of an American" and she senses the danger to her son. Her energy and self-sacrifice bring the play to its climax.

Henry Wadsworth, a newcomer to the KA company, will take the part of the son. The play ran for 256 performances in New York.

M'QUHAE AT "MET"

Allen McQuhae, the popular Irish tenor, has been announced as the soloist of the Salon Ensemble concert at the Metropolitan Theatre tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mr. McQuhae, it will be remembered, gave a series of radio concerts last Summer during the weekly Atwater Kent hour.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Look Before You Eat!

John McGrail, dietitian-press agent of the Metropolitan and indefatigable writer of purposeful plays, has just completed his latest manuscript. It is a three-act comedy called "Count Your Calories," good humoredly joshing the greedy appetite. To be produced in the Spring.

History and Hilarity

In Doctor Rockwell's uproarious travesty on the schoolroom in the "Greenwich Village Follies," at the Shubert, there is this question asked one of the "pupils:" In what great American city was the first Liberty Bond issued? And the answer is, of course, Reno, Nevada.

FILMLAND DOES ITS LOYAL BEST---"STUDENT PRINCE" REACHES LOCAL SCREEN

HAY, HAY! Will Rogers goes to Congress from the sixteenth Texas district and seems to feel right at home in the presence of so much brush. The picture is "The Texas Steer," playing jointly at the Olympia and Fenway.

THE BAR SINISTER. In "The Student Prince" at Loew's State, Norma Shearer is barred from marrying this royal beau because she is a barmaid. Ramon Novarro is a hero who for once does not get his girl.

RUTH TAYLOR plays Lorelei Lee, the champ gold-digger who disarms her victims with this baby stare. "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." (Metropolitan.)

IN THE GLOAMING, Nils Asther discovers that Mary Nolan is the girl he needs. This is "Sorrell and Son" coming to the Orpheum next week.

SNEAKING A SMOKE while the Boss isn't looking seems to be a relished peculation for any occupation. In "Bow Schreer" at the Scollay, Roscoe Karns (left) works hard for Noah Beery as the sheeted, cheated Sheik.

NATURAL WONDERS IN VOICELESS DRAMA

By LEO GAFFNEY

THE choice of Ramon Novarro to play the title role in "The Student Prince" has so stirred up one tireless reader of this column that we have been goaded into serious action. The reason for his excitement seems to be that Novarro isn't, wasn't and can't be German. Caring more for mixed drinks than for mixed metaphors, the gentleman argues, "The leopard cannot change his spots—you can't make a Teuton out of a Latin!" Rather than be drawn into any protracted discussion on such grave matters, we did the handsome thing and allowed this positive person to work us for a pass to Loew's State, where next week he may see how much a close haircut and Ernst Lubitsch can do toward racial transposition.

* * *

BUT lest this big-hearted bene faction be confused with any outbreak of philanthropy, it must be quickly confessed that there was madness in our method. For lurking in the sub-depths of a conscience remarkable for such things there was discovered a responsive chord sounding in sympathy with the distressed outcries of the dissenter. Actually, the gentleman's point was well taken. Ramon is not Germanic, and all the barbers, directors and Pilsner beer in the world cannot make him so. Ernst Lubitsch knows this. And Novarro isn't kidding himself, either. In the movies, all that is required of a leading man for romantic drama is that he be of the "great lover" type.

Ramon Novarro

ALMOST without exception the romantic leads in the films are Latins or lads with Latin tendencies. The popularity of the late Valentino seems to have wrought this fashion. He paved the way for Novarro, Ricardo Cortez, Gilbert Roland, Don Alvarado, Adolphe Menjou and all the rest who are so adept at holding a swooning heroine in strong, unselfconscious arms. Yes, indeed, Mr. Novarro will be all right as "The Student Prince." He will wear his uniforms better than any tenor, he will make love in the most expert style, and a squad of barbers and the master director, Lubitsch, will be able to carry the rest of the illusion. No one will care a tinker's tink whether the brocaded Karl Franz looks "natural" or not.

FOR the benefit of anyone insisting on a leading man looking and acting strictly "natural," and also in the interests of good entertainment, the Washington Olympia is showing that lariat-larruping laddybuck, Will Rogers, next week in "The Texas Steer." Writing his own press stuff, Will explains: "The pic'ure is a movie of Hoyt's old stage play. It was the story of a Texas cow-man elected to Congress on bought votes. I was picked for the part of the Cattleman-Congressman because all the rest of the Hollywood actors have morality clauses in their contracts. I did my darndest to act natural like a Congressman. And any Congressman acting natural can make me a laugh every day in the week."

Just Takes Naturally to Drama Collaboration

Some playwrights avoid collaboration, others have collaboration thrust upon them, and still others are born collaborators. George Abbott, whose "Four Walls," which he wrote in conjunction with Dana Burnet, commencing February 6, belongs to the last named variety. The long succession of outstanding hits which are associated with his name have invariably been written in conjunction with other playwrights, and, strange to say, George Abbott derives a positive kick from working hand in hand with his fellow craftsmen of the theatre.

George Abbott

Although he began his stage career as an actor, he was ready to abandon acting as soon as he was able to convince himself that his real talent lay in playwriting and direction. This occurred when "The Holy Terror," which he wrote with Winchell Smith, was produced.

Eddie Buzzell Goes on the Stage and Pays and Pays

Having in his possession fifteen dollars, which his mother had given him to pay a grocery bill, bobbed Eddie Buzzell to go on the stage. Buzzell is the young comedy star now appearing in "The Letter Stone," at the Majestic. At fifteen, Eddie was employed as an errand boy receiving the sum of $5 a week. His boss was set on going on the stage. A schoolmate, who was appearing with Gus Edwards' Juvenile revue, told him that if he would rehearse three weeks without pay he would be accepted. His parents would not hear of his leaving his job, so Eddie kept the $15 threw up his job, and reported to Edwards for rehearsal. Every Saturday, for the next three weeks, he gave his mother $5 out of the fifteen. Reaping her under the impression that he was still holding down his job with the mercantile establishment.

Family Feet Bring Sweet Alice Tripping to Stage

One day during recess at a rehearsal of the eighth edition of George White's Scandals, which begins a four weeks' engagement at the Shubert Monday evening, February 6, a pretty little miss stepped forward and asked for permission to dance for the producer. Her request was granted. After she finished Mr. White exclaimed "that's great! Where did you learn to dance?" "Oh, it just runs in the family, Uncle George." "What's the title of the tune?" "I'm just your niece Alice White from Canada," the young lady replied. Little Alice now is understudy to Ann Pennington, headed for fame, stardom and a fortune—maybe.

SUNDAY FILM

Loew's State announces a complete new program of pictures and vaudeville for tomorrow. The film will be the first Boston showings of "Tea for Three" with Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle. The picture is announced for the day only.

FILM FARE FOR NEW WEEK

METROPOLITAN—(Starting today) Ruth Taylor in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" (first run), adapted from the book and play by Anita Loos. Farce comedy by way of being an epic of the gold-digger. The cast also features Alice White, Ford Sterling, Holmes Herbert and Chester Conklin. Malcolm St. Clair directed. A Paramount picture. On the stage, Paul Oscard's "Dancing Feet," presented by Gene Rodemich.

* * *

LOEW'S STATE—Ramon Novarro and Norma Shearer in "The Student Prince" (first run), adapted from the old stage play and the more recent operetta. Heart throbs of a royal prince while a carefree student at Heidelberg. The cast includes Jean Hersholt, Gustave Von Seyffertitz and Otis Harlan. Ernst Lubitsch directed. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. On stage, Freddie Behrens and his "Aviators" band.

* * *

NEW BOSTON—(Starting tomorrow) Esther Ralston in "Love and Learn" (first run), adapted from the story by Doris Anderson. Romantic comedy of a girl who looks for trouble and finds a husband. The cast includes Lane Chandler, Hedda Hopper and Claude King. Frank Tuttle directed. A Paramount picture. Also vaudeville.

* * *

OLYMPIA—(Starting tomorrow) Will Rogers in "The Texas Steer" (first run), adapted from the old stage play by Charles H. Hoyt. A serio-comic yarn of a cattleman who goes to Congress and acts "natural." Cast includes Louise Fazenda, Ann Rork, Sam Hardy and Lilyan Tashman. Richard Wallace directed. A First National picture. Also vaudeville.

* * *

SCOLLAY—(Starting tomorrow) "Beau Sabreur," adapted from the novel by Percival Wren. Adventure story and romance of the French Foreign Legion. Cast features Gary Cooper, Noah Beery and Evelyn Brent, John Waters directed. A Paramount picture. Also vaudeville.

MODERN AND BEACON—(Starting today) "Streets of Shanghai" (first run) with Pauline Starke, Kenneth Harlan and Margaret Livingston. Louis Gasnier directed. A Tiffany picture. Also Henry B. Walthall in "A Light in the Window," with Patricia Avery. Percy Pembroke directed. A Rayart picture.

* * *

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—H. B. Warner in "Sorrell and Son," taken from Warwick Deeping's popular novel. The cast includes Allec Joyce, Nils Asther, Mary Nolan, Carmel Myers, Anna Q. Nilsson and Louis Wolheim. Herbert Brenon directed. A United Artists' picture. Also vaudeville.

* * *

FENWAY—(Starting today) Will Rogers in "The Texas Steer," and Edmund Lowe in "The Wizard."

Starting Wednesday, Lewis Stone in "Lonesome Ladies," also "Stark Love."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Introducing a Neighbor
Who is Old Bill Whipple? Those who hear the Saturday evening broadcasts from WEAF know the voice, but few know the great man in person. He stands uncovered as Rupert B. Ripley, agent extraordinary for the Modern, Beacon and allied theatrical enterprises.

Just a Busy Little Bee
Maude Lydiate, titian-haired dancer in "The Desert Song," was late for rehearsal. She gave as her excuse that she had been delayed at a fortune teller's. "You can't beat that girl," exclaimed the stage manager, when she isn't having her palm read she's having her hair red!"

FIRST HERO TO PROVE SENSIBLE

By ROBERT E. SHERWOOD,
Author of "The Road to Rome," at the W. H. Hur.

"Fabius is a type familiar to us—the materialist, the product of a civilization the ideals of which are expansion, success. Those ideals brought about, later, the most corrupt and licentious civilization the world has ever seen. Continual material success simply must be followed by decadence. Fabius' wife, Amytis, is a Greek — possessed of imagination and love of beauty. Thus against the Roman ideals I have tried to balance the Athenian ideals of beauty and sympathy and—oh, they are very intangible, that is why they are magnificent. I tried to express them in the play with the term 'the human equation.' I have tried to show the triumph of intelligence.

Robert E. Sherwood

Hannibal from childhood had been consecrated to the project of destroying Rome, and he went blindly about fulfilling that oath. At the very moment when he was about to consummate his vow, a woman merely asked him a question. She asked him "Why?" For the first time in his life he was hit in the intelligence. It wasn't because the woman was seductive, or because she spent a night of illicit love with him that Hannibal turns away from Rome.

It is not for love of Amytis, but it is his gesture of understanding the force of her arguments. Asking her question of himself—why was he doing what he was—he then saw the futility of it. At first he realized this dimly, asking Amytis in despair, "So I have marched three thousand miles through terrible hardships and then failed?" Amytis makes it clear that he has not failed since the great victory is his for the taking, but since it is already his—why take it? Since he can destroy Rome—since he has proved himself—what is the use of further bloodshed?

MEXICANS SLAY MANY REBELS IN BATTLES

Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 28 (A.P.)—The wholesale slaughter of rebels in the bandit-infested region of Nayarit, Mexico, into which the Mexican government has thrown thousands of troops, has resulted in several fierce engagements between the insurrectors and Federal forces, in which many died in the fighting.

Word brought here by William P. Blocker, American consul at Mazatlan, Mexico, declared that three heavy battles were fought last week, one at Ixtlan, Nayarit, and another at Mesa de Diego, small border town on the Durango-Nayarit boundary.

In the Ixtlan engagement, Blocker said, 37 rebels and 14 Federal soldiers were killed, while many died in the San Diego fighting.

General Zertuche, who commands the Federal troops at Acaponeta, led his forces in one other battle against the rebels besides the San Diego engagement.

The troops of General Jovinito Espinosa, in command of Federal troops operating between Acaponeta and Tepic, systematically are combing that region for bandits, Blocker said, and when any are captured no quarter is given.

Catholic Bishop Escapes Police in Mexico City

Mexico City, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Mexican police, continuing to round up those suspected of breaking the religious law, failed in a attempt to arrest Miguel de la Mora, Bishop of San Luis Potosi.

The bishop, who has been in hiding since the majority of prelates were deported itself, somewhat successfully evaded arrest when he slipped out of the back door as police raided the home of Manuel Cortina Rivas in San Angel, a few miles from Mexico City.

FOIL THIRD KIDNAPING PLOT IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—The third kidnaping plot within three days in the section in and around Philadelphia ended today like its two predecessors—with the alleged perpetrator in jail.

Joseph McIntyre, fourteen, is the latest to confess to writing notes demanding money on penalty of harm to children of the persons to whom the letters were addressed. Like the others, he was trapped by detectives who placed the money or decoys at the appointed place. He admitted the authorship of a threatening letter received by Harold Mulligan, an undertaker, and demanding $500 or "one of your girls will be killed."

LONDON PAGES A PIED PIPER; RATS MENACE LIFE

London, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Rats, the recent floods have driven from the riverside, have become a serious menace in South Lambeth. It was reported today that rats, suffering from hunger, have invaded occupied living rooms of houses in the daytime in Conroy street in search of food. At night the rats enter bedrooms and terrify occupants.

1,500 SLAIN IN RAID BY CHINESE REDS

Canton, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Advices from the northern borders of Canton province today told of the sacking of two border villages and the murder of 1,500 men, women and children. There are no Americans in the vicinity.

Four thousand alleged Communists in Hunan province staged the raid on the villages. No other details were given.

COLOMBIA WILL PRESENT CROSS TO LINDBERGH

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Colombia today paid tribute to the flier who blazed an air trail over towering mountains to its capital.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is the first airman to cross the ranges to the valley in which Bogota lies. Flying high as does the eagle, his namesake, he came from Cartagena some 400 miles away, over rugged mountains enshrouded in clouds past dense tropical jungles and dangerous ravines.

He completed his journey in six hours one minute.

A detachment from the aviation school quickly surrounded the plane to protect it from damage. As Lindbergh stepped out he was picked up by some of the crowd who carried him to the place of honor. The band struck up the American national anthem and then that of Colombia.

General Luis Acosta Rivera Cross before he leaves for Caracas Venezuela, tomorrow. There will also be a big fight in his honor, the third in his tour.

50,000 to Greet Lindy in Venezuelan Capital

Caracas, Venezuela, Jan. 28 (I.N.S.)—Plans for the welcome of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh were completed today and such is the intensity of public enthusiasm that Sunday promises to be the largest day in the history of the capital.

It is estimated that more than 50,000 persons will take part in the greeting to the aviator on his arrival here.

Col. Lindbergh is expected to leave Bogota shortly after dawn Monday, 70 miles from this city, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. He will come here immediately from the field.

REMUS RESCUES TWO GUARDS FROM PRISONER

Lima, Ohio, Jan. 27 (A. P.)—George Remus, former "bootleg king," and now an inmate of the Lima Hospital for the Criminal Insane, today came to the rescue of two guards who were having trouble with an unruly inmate.

As the guards were taking a negro through the grounds, he resisted them and gave one a trimmeling. Remus engaged the negro and completely subdued him before other aid arrived.

CATHOLIC PRIOR JAILED FOR 10 YEARS IN MOSCOW

Moscow, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Monsignor Theophile Skalsky, Roman Catholic prior of the Kiev Cathedral, who went on trial several days ago charged with various offenses, including espionage in behalf of Poland, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison and five years loss of civic rights.

The monsignor was convicted of all the charges except the espionage one.

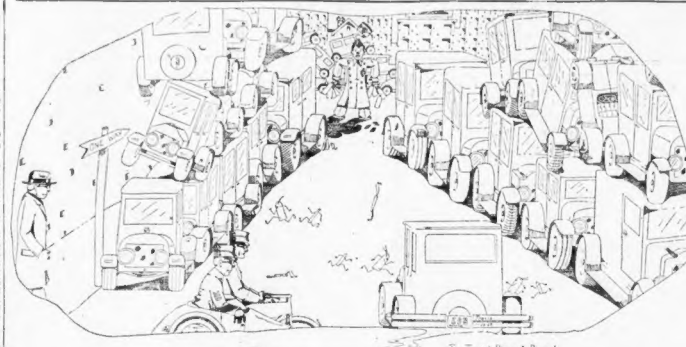
'Twas Only One Car Tagger's Dream



The Tagger's Pursuit Dream!

Patrolman Artist gives his conception of gentle game of tag.

Patrolman Travis of Jamaica Plain Bobs Up as Skillful Pen and Ink Cartoonist

It's been only ten days since Patrolman Leonard R. Travis of the Jamaica Plain station has been assigned to the "tagain, sohad" working out of Traffic 20 but even in that short time, the target has become victim of a habit known as "taggitis."

So—being skilled in the swinging of a duck-inked pen, the policeman cartooned about it. He called his accomplishment "A Tagger's Pleasant Dream," and he got a laugh even out of Otto Grow's daddy, who is none other than Frank Collier, who thinks he's a golfer.

The likeness of Sergeant Norman Ramsey, riding on the motorcycle sidecar, whom the tagger had seen only twice on his assignment, was remarkable, and that of Captain Bernard J. Hope, at the extreme left, skipper of Traffic 20, was just as good.

Even the coldfish of the police commissioner's plate is in the cartoon, that shows innumerable cars and trucks piled up along the curbing, while strap hats race hither and yon — and from here to there — across the thoroughfare.

And Officer George Gannon, driving the motorcycle, has his deep-sea diving glasses on while he buzzes his motorcycle along, with the sergeant out to jump as in real life, of course, over what right of way is left between the piled-up cars.

Society Note: Patrolman Leon and R. Travis of Jamaica Plain paid a formal call on Franklin P. Collier of Melrose. No summons was served.

SEEKS FEDERAL TELEPHONE INQUIRY

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The first Federal inquiry ever undertaken in to the activities of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and its control over hundreds of local telephone companies, will be proposed in the Senate today by Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R.) of California.

Johnson planned to introduce a resolution calling for a special inquiry by a committee of five Senators into the whole question of telephone communication. His inquiry would apply to the great group of communications companies, which did not come within the provisions of the "power trust" investigation proposed by Senator Walsh (D.) of Montana.

The inquiry would affect telephone users in every State in the Union, because of the American Telephone Company's far-reaching control. Every telephone instrument used in the United States and every piece of telephone equipment protected by patents, it was said, are owned by the A. T. & T. and were "rented" to local companies.

CAN'T EXPLAIN MISSING 'COW FRAUD' PAPER

That State officers have been unsuccessful in fixing blame for loss of papers in the so-called Worcester cattle fraud cases, which has resulted in District Attorney Rugg's policy pressing larceny indictments against Joseph W. Ellsworth of Barre, was revealed today by Charles P. Howard, chairman of the State Commission on Administration and Finance.

District Attorney Rugg told the court he could not try the case because the papers had been lost at the State House.

Chairman Howard pointed out today that the comptroller's office of which James C. McCormick is head, took charge of the investigation when Governor Fuller interested himself in the affair, and that the papers relating to about 100 cases were at various times in the hands of the Department of Public Safety, the attorney general and various county prosecutors.

Howard said the Ellsworth papers are the only ones that couldn't be found. He admitted Comptroller McCormick may have been careless in not getting receipts.

Frank H. Cummings, director of the division of animal industry, said he had letters on file to show he had asked return of the Ellsworth papers from the comptroller.

U. S. ELECTRICITY EQUALS 275,000,000 MANPOWER

Washington, Jan. 28 A.P.) — Mighty is electricity. The Department of the Interior estimates that the electric power produced in this country last year was the equivalent of eleven able-bodied laborers working for each family of four for waves of $15 per year, or about 275,000,000 man power.

54,000 AMERICANS GET CANADA RUM PERMITS

Toronto, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Visitors from the United States, it has just been revealed, purchased 54,000 permits to buy liquor in Ontario from June 1 to November 1 last year. How much liquor they outpoured is problematical, but it is estimated they spent at least eight dollars each, or a total of about $432,000.

ONE DEAD IN OIL BLAST FIRE

McCamey, Tex., Jan. 28 (A.P.)—Blackened and twisted sheet metal of a dozen oil tanks today marked the site of a spectacular fire here that caused one death and resulted in damage estimated at $100,000. Five men were injured slightly.

Starting with a terrific explosion in one of the 5,000 barrel tanks of the Humble Oil and Refining Company, the flames spread to eleven more tanks, filled for the most part with gasoline.

Fred Hendricks, chemist, who was inspecting the tank when it exploded, was hurled high in the air and fell back into the fire. His body was not recovered.

The fire continued for hours with flames shooting hundreds of feet into the air. Thousands watched the fire from dikes protecting other tank farms.

TWO POLICEMEN HURT IN CRASH

Patrolman John Savage of the Dudley street police station was seriously injured and Sergt. Edward T. O'Neil of the same division shaken up, when the patrol in which they were riding was overturned at the corner of Blue Hill and Lawrence avenues early today.

The cause of the accident was not learned, but it is believed that Savage, who was driving, lost control when he swerved the machine to avoid a collision.

Train Wreck Kills 22

Hahn Heads Brilliant Track Array in K. C. Meet

DASH FAVORITE. Al "Truck" Miller, former Harvard star, is one of the outstanding stars in the invitation 40-yard dash at the K. of C. games tonight. He will have to defeat such stars as Wildermuth, French and Morrill in order to win.

DEFENDING CHAMPION. Ralph Colson, N. E. A. A. U. 300-yard champion, will defend his title at Mechanics Building tonight. Ralph will have the outstanding college runners in this part of the country against him. Colson will also run in the invitation forty-yard dash.

IN MEMORIAM. The Knights of Columbus have dedicated their track meet tonight at Mechanics Building to William C. Prout, their past leader. The meet is known as the William C. Prout Memorial Games. "Bill" was one of the greatest boosters for amateur sports in the country.

WEARS THE CRIMSON. Ralph Luttman will represent Harvard in the two-mile race at Mechanics Building this evening. Luttman has come along fast under the able coaching of Eddie [illegible] and he should [illegible] good showing tonight.

BATTLES HAHN. Willie Goodwin, a member of the New York A. C., will run in the Curley mile tonight. He is expected to give Lloyd Hahn the stiffest battle he has had this year. Goodwin has turned in very fast time for the mile.

ARROWS BATTLE TIGERS

Quaker Outfit at Top of Game for Can.-Am. Clash at Arena Tonight

Lineup at Arena Tonight

BOSTON	PHILADELPHIA
[illegible]	[illegible]

By BILL GRIMES

Norman Shay's Philadelphia Arrows will oppose the Tigers tonight at the Boston Arena and the local aggregation will find the Quaker outfit playing better hockey than at any time this season.

Since the appearance of the Arrows at the Arena, Manager Shay has made a few changes in his team. He has shifted Archie Briden, the former Bruin from the wing to centre and has moved Earl Robinson out to the wing. Manch Harry has won a place on the defence berth at left wing.

With Briden at centre, flanked by Robinson and Martin, the Arrows have been playing fast hockey. Briden has been a big help to the Quaker city aggregation and since he went to center and new defence pairing has been in effect the Arrows have won every game but one. Their lone setback was a 3 to 2 defeat at the hands of the Boston Tigers.

Although the Arrows victory over New Haven, following a 6 to 0 shutout over Providence, he was credited with an assist on the goal scored by Ho [illegible].

Jerry Carson, who is a brother of the Maple Leaf star, and Steve Yakowski will be on the outer defense [illegible] Arrows. Yakowski has been playing [illegible] Carson has been a new [illegible] Lester Patrick, who was forced to remain idle for a couple of weeks because of bad ankles, will be back in the game [illegible] Arrows.

Although the Tigers fell before the Indians at Providence they exhibited a fast brand of hockey and got back in their winning stride against Toronto. Against the Indians the Tigers were forced to battle without George Redding and Bill Field and they were noticeably outplayed in every department. It was [illegible] Tom should be discussing heavyweights as he has Ernie Schaaf and Benny Touchstone billed to battle in a ten-round bout at the New Boston Arena on next Monday night. Goodwin it should, also has a very strong weakness towards heavyweights.

It is just four years ago this Tom started promoting Jack Sharkey who at the time was a $150 preliminary fighter. Goodwin saw the possibilities of a great heavyweight in Sharkey and had the former sailor in with Floyd Johnson within four months of the night he engaged in his first preliminary bout in Boston. Sharkey has lived up to Goodwin's highest hopes.

Jim Maloney next came under Goodwin's eye. He started him at $150 a fight and later saw Shamus battling for $5,000 purses in the Delaney and Shawkey matches in New York.

Mr. Boston [illegible] Goodwin's quarters and demanded to know whom Tom thought was the best of the younger crop of heavyweights. "I have taken a national canvass and the winner of my poll was Schaaf with Touchstone a close second," said Mr. Boston.

Boston gets its taste of Olympic games action for the first time this Winter when one of the greatest army of athletic talent ever assembled goes to the mark in the William C. Prout memorial games this evening in Mechanics Hall

The games start promptly at 7:15 and they should be over before 11.

There are really two meets in one The relay card featuring the games is a meet in itself. Harvard faces Holy Cross in two races both varsity and freshmen. Boston College runs New Hampshire, the B. U. freshman go against English and envy.

Brown runs Tech, Mich. Northeastern, Boston U. and Tufts matched with Mass. Aggie. Clemstrides with Worcester Tech and the B. A. A. holds the second picked team of New York's Irish Lexington Columbian Club.

There are two events by the English High, Boston Latin and Dorchester lads in a three-cornered contest and the Knights of Columbus running the Latin quartet.

Of course [illegible] the call. Because the games are memorial to William C. Prout, head of the Old Colony corporation of A. A. U., the founder of the meeting, special memorial events will be held and Dr. [illegible] which a representative of the [illegible] committee, and [illegible] K. of C. will be there.

Exporting Good Will

By REV. JAMES L. BARTON, D. D.

Our most valuable exports into Asia and Africa are not oil and cigarettes. We hear a great deal about these and similar commodities, but we see no statistical columns setting forth those things which the United States is constantly sending into practically every country of the world, the value of which cannot be measured by the momentary standards of any country. I refer to the American Ambassadors of good will and fraternal fellowship who number about 30,000 educated and refined men and women who have taken up their residence among peoples inclined not to be friendly with the white race and whom for the most part the white races do not understand. These Americans, we call them Christian missionaries. They do not exploit the natives nor boast of how superior they and their country are.

These American Ambassadors of the friendly spirit never speak of "niggers" or "dagos" or "greasers" or "Chunks" or "Japs," but recognize in every person they meet the potential capacities possessed by any person for intellectual, social and moral advance. The darker races see in these pale-faced visitors from the west a spirit of friendliness which has never been exhibited by explorers, globe trotters, itinerant correspondents and many Consuls.

The outcome is that America, from which these representatives hail, is looked upon as a country in which a spirit of benevolence and helpfulness rules. Their attitude towards all Americans softens and America becomes a land much to be desired. Friendliness, brotherliness and cordiality are commodities which multiply at home by exportation abroad and out of all this comes a new international relationship that assures peace and good understanding. These missionaries of right living are rapidly becoming the true promoters of that fraternal spirit among all peoples which will make an enduring peace among the nations.

MR. FRISBY'S MOUTH NOW CLOSED INCIDENT

Congressman, Sullen, Says "Pshaw" to Indolent Police

Sheriff Wimbold, who has refused to loan his bloodhounds to trace Congressman Frisby's teeth, Wimbold says he is afraid the bloodhounds might be snapped at and get hydrophobia.

By Congressman Frisby

WASHINGTON—If the police do not recover my false teeth within forty-eight hours I shall say nothing further about the matter.

This is an ultimatum.

It is an outrage when a man of my standing can lose something very near and dear to him and not have the police find it.

As late as this morning I dropped into police headquarters and inquired at first one window and then another, "Has anyone found my teeth?" I refused to take no for an answer. Some of the policemen wouldn't even look up from their game of checkers. "Pshaw!" I cried, for I could no longer contain myself.

It is very trying for a person who is fond of solid foods to go day after day, week after week, without his teeth. I am sure that my teeth were stolen as I slept—probably in a picture show.

I suppose I could go buy another plate—but that isn't the idea. I was very fond of my other teeth—they were an heirloom in my wife's family, and had been worn by the Frisbys since the American Revolution. I want their return for sentimental as well as dialectical reasons.

BULL-ETIN

(News Item)

CHICAGO—Mrs. Myrtle Miller applied for her sixth divorce here today. "I think men are great," she said, "and I intend to marry again. This time I am going to look for an old man and settle down."

However, the fact remains that Will Swindell is a public accountant and income tax expert in New York.

SHORT STORY

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

I am a bellboy, and the other day a Rolls-Royce rolled up to the front door loaded with baggage. After staggering under several loads of luggage I arranged everything very orderly and made our guests feel right at home.

After waiting on them for a half hour he very politely said: "That will be all. THANK YOU very much."

Can you imagine my embarrassment when on getting downstairs I remembered I had forgotten to say, "YOU'RE WELCOME"?

Yours bitterly,

BILL BOYE.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

ACCORDING to fashion experts, there are over ten million well dressed men in this country. The rest of them are college boys.

THE average senior does the best he can on a freshman's wardrobe.

HE wears the nicest clothes that his roommate can afford.

ONE Scot-man always bought balloon trousers for his two sons so that both boys could go walking in the same pair of pants.

THEY ostruded the right leg and resied the left one.

THEY also put handles on their silk hats and used them for overnight bags.

SOME college boys dress so loud that the city won't even let them walk past the deaf and dumb asylum.

ONE fellow's shirt was so gay that all the lightening bugs were smoked glasses.

HE couldn't have worn worse look ing ties if he'd been married.

HE has a raccoon coat, but the moths are using it for a lunch room.

PILE REMEDY Guarantee
Hurry the tube with pile pipe and away the box of PAZO OINTMENT is sold by all druggists with the understanding that money will be refunded if it fails to heal any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. Why not try it.

HE'S trying to grow another one by putting hair on a slicker.

HIS spats used to be white, but he went out for a walk in Pittsburgh.

HE'S a Cambridge man and won't wear Oxfords.

HE has the same feelings that a Harvard graduate has against Yale locks.

THE poor fellow caught pneumonia the other evening. He went out without his cane.

ON a real cold night he carries two walking sticks.

HE used to wear a derby, but his girl is using it for a goldfish bowl.

AMERICAN university students may not have the loudest college yells, but their clothes certainly make the most noise.

Jealousy in Children

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

ONE of those spectacular amateur shows that have attained popularity in small cities was in full swing. Jeanette and Maria opened the performance with a costume dance.

They had practiced the dance together for weeks and there was no reason why either of them should make a mistake. But Maria made one—deliberately.

Maria is pretty, clever, industrious and capable. She usually excels in whatever she undertakes. But she is less beautiful and less graceful than Jeanette; and dancing is the one thing that Jeanette does better than any one else in that town.

All during the rehearsals Maria heard spectators praising the grace and beauty and talent of Jeanette. Jealous Maria couldn't bear that. That's why she deliberately skipped a step in order to make her partner blunder.

Jeanette's quick wit and nimble feet enabled her to invent a dance step and thus cover up what she believed was Maria's stage fright. Her partner's invention confused Maria and it was she who lost step and appeared at a disadvantage before the audience.

Generous, straightforward Jeanette never suspected the trick that her friend had tried to play.

Nobody except the director and one other woman understood the significance of that little by-play. Afterwards they were discussing the matter.

"Maria can no more help that jealous spirit than she can help being a blonde," said the woman. "She was born and reared in the atmosphere of her mother's consuming jealousy. Why, that woman is jealous of her own sisters. She was furious because the younger ones were sent away to school—a privilege which she missed in her younger days.

It torments her when a neighbor has a new car, new furniture or a bigger house than she has. It burns her up if anybody's child excels one of her own, in any line. It angers her if her husband pays more attention to their daughter than he does to her.

"Aside from that insane jealousy she is one of the most companionable women I have ever known. But that green-eyed monster dominates her life. How could Maria be otherwise?"

"Maria is lovely in other ways, too," answered the director. "It is a pity that such a trait should make her stoop so far beneath her own level."

Almost anybody feels the pangs of jealousy at some time. It is a weakness of human nature that has to be overcome. It causes needless anguish, and quite often lands good people to do contemptible things.

Instead of cultivating it in a child—by example—parents should discourage it—by example. For that is the only method of fighting jealousy.

Jealousy and rivalry are closely akin and yet they are not the same. A healthy spirit of rivalry does much to spur youth on toward the goal of success.

When children reach the age when the gang spirit is developing, that is the time to introduce competition between groups. It is under that influence that each of the "gangs" will exert himself to win success for his team. Such a spirit of rivalry is the kind that has inspired world progress.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN'S love is weakening when he stops demanding your kisses and casually accepts them; but it is not quite dead, until he merely permits them.

* * *

No man has lost his beautiful faith in life as long as he can spare at his reflection under a few wisps of hair and through a cloud of shaving lather, and still fondly believe that some woman loves him for his sex appeal.

* * *

A woman will go out of her way to make a man "suffer"; but a man can make a woman suffer, just by going his OWN sweet way.

* * *

The average man's idea of carrying on an animated conversation with his wife is to sit with that pained faraway look in his eyes, and wait patiently until she "gets through."

* * *

A woman can forgive an ex-husband for showing "bad judgment" in his second choice; but she can never forgive any man for showing "bad TASTE" in his selection of her successor.

* * *

It's a "date" when a man makes it with his flapper-stenographer; an "engagement" when he makes it with the woman he loves—and an "appointment" when it happens to be with the dentist—or his wife.

* * *

Most husbands and wives appear to regard marriage as life's "repair department," in which it is their duty to patch up each others' weaknesses and give each other a brand new polish.

* * *

A man may spend weeks assuring a woman that she is beautiful, brilliant and noble—and then lose out to some careless philanderer, who spends five minutes assuring her that she has "IT."

* * *

A woman may admire a man for his talents and virtues; but, somehow, she never has quite the tender feeling for him until she has to forgive him for something.

U. S. STEEL IS ACTIVE IN NEW ENGLAND

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

U. S. Steel's new triumvirate—J. P. Morgan, President Jones A. Purnell and Chairman Myron C. Taylor—were exclusively described in this column December 31, 1927, as all having intimate New England connections, including birth or ancestry. The story in part or in whole was later widely used throughout the country.

* * *

And now we wish to point out that U. S. Steel, which is far preferably associated with this section as regards industrial operations, is indeed very active here. This is through its subsidiary, the American Steel and Wire Company, situated at Worcester, Mass., the product which encircle the world. Its output ranges from the hair spring of a watch to the cable of a great suspension bridge. It has lately completed a $2,000,000 billet and rod mill.

* * *

American Steel and Wire Company makes "the heart of the Common Wealth" also the world's centre of wire production. U. S. Steel plans permanently to continue the manufacture of its wire specialties in Worcester.

* * *

President Herbert L. Tinkham of W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. reports the big Brockton concern in an exceptionally strong financial condition. He is optimistic concerning business ahead, as the annual meeting of the following directors were elected, Herbert L. Tinkham, Charles D. Nevins, Burton J. Torrey, Ernest S. Rogers, Herbert T. Drake, Frank W. Soare and Clarence C. Reed, the last three named, being new directors of the board. The olowing officers were elected: Herbert L. Tinkham, president; Charles D. Nevins, vice-president and treasurer; Burton J. Torrey, Frank W. Soare, Jr., assistant treasurer.

President Tinkham says: "We now have on hand ahead for our workmen to make orders for over half a million pairs of shoes, which will insure running our factories full time for the coming season." Also the past year was the heaviest stock has earned and paid regular dividends in the case for the past 20 years annum. The 70th consecutive dividend was recently paid to its 2500 stockholders.

W I have previously cited for honorable mention the Douglas Company as one that, under energetic President Tinkham, sees business instead of moaning about it. Dexter 8900

Wall Street Gossip

FOR du Pont virtually every department showed 1927 increase, though there was a slight falling off in numerical existence due to midwestern coal strikes.

DU PONT earned $15.45 a share on 2,601,651 shares in 1927, against $13.58 a share in 1926.

DU PONT business for 1927 was about 10 per cent larger than previous year, resulting in increased earnings despite generally lower prices for products.

LEAPS FROM WASHINGTON SHAFT; 1 CENT IN POCKET

Baltimore, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—With one cent in his pocket after paying the 15-cent admission fee to the Washington Monument in Mount Vernon Place, here, an unidentified man today plunged 180 feet from its top to death on the snow-covered pavement.

Only the initials "J. E. K." on a silver belt buckle identified the man. The man climbed the monument yesterday, asked its height, and returned in the morning. Weather today.

CHAPLIN WILL REWARD AIDES IN 'CIRCUS'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGE 28, Jan. 28.—Charlie Chaplin believes in rewarding good work. Even if he didn't realize himself that Merna Kennedy and Harry Crocker both did very good work in "The Circus" after reading the New York reviews of it, he were grandmously expressed in favor of his picture, he'd have to think a few good things about those two young people. He has encased both of them to play in his next picture.

His next film—his first in the thing. He doesn't know himself. "Napoleon" will not be made for nearly a year. "The Bottle Club" has been abandoned. "Nowhere" is living up to its name. I mean, it isn't reaching anywhere. But he has another idea. Charlie always has ideas — something different when we expect to have well under way in March.

THE air has been filled with rumors that Robert Kane and First National had agreed to disagree. It seems, however, that Kane has come to a parting of the ways. But the trouble doesn't seem serious for there is a check waiting for Kane, who purchased "Satan's Bushel," may release this picture through First National. I'm told he is negotiating with both F. N. and United Artists.

"Satan's Bushel" is based on a current magazine story, and in what one might call a farming epic. It has the locale in the Middle west during the time when the wheat fields are ripening. Harvesting is always good atmosphere.

JOSEPH SCHENCK has gone to Chicago. It's said he will meet Adolph Zukor and Jesse Lasky in the Windy City and discuss some business plans. It isn't an amalgamation, as much as I should like to rumor, but rather, I should say, a meeting to arrange for the presentation of United Artists and Paramount's pictures.

The purchase by the Fox company of the West Coast chain has made it necessary for all the film companies to look the picture situation squarely in the face.

Of course, controlling the West Coast doesn't mean that there will be nothing but Fox films shown in these houses. Fox or no other single producing organization can make enough pictures, but it does mean that the Fox company will give its own wares preference. That's human nature.

YOU always sort of instinctively feel when Clive Brook is in a picture. He must have a style where a hero could be a little sad, a little remote and terribly proper but I don't know what kind of character he plays in "The Yellow Lily," but I know he has been selected to play opposite Billie Dove in this story by Ladislo Bird. He has been borrowed from Paramount by First National for the occasion.

WINFIELD SHEEHAN — and I'm proud to say he used to be a newspaper man—is on his way to New York. After taking the Fox company out of the motion picture and putting it on the map as the maker of the finest motion pictures produced, Winnie isn't going to lay down on the job.

He is going to New York to see what the theatrical crop promises and you may be sure it turns up any plays that he feels will duplicate "Seventh Heaven" and "What Price Glory." There will be a role made. He'll be in New York for several months.

THERE was "Old Home Week" at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios yesterday. Monta Bell, minus moustache and goatee, has returned from foreign travel, as they say in the village gazette. Monta was busy receiving friends and talking about his experiences on the other side.

DODGE PLANS INCREASE OF OUTPUT

Production schedules for the New Victory Six recently announced by Dodge Brothers are to be materially increased, according to John R. Lee, general sales manager, to make possible prompt delivery of the cars the telegramphic orders being received from dealers.

"Factory production and scheduled allotments for shipment to dealers during the first three months of 1928," he said, "were planned in anticipation of a very generous demand for the new car, with its advanced engineering features, but telegrams asking for immediate shipment and for increased allotments indicate that the end of January will see a decided enlargement of our production plans must be completed so that all requirements of the new Victory Six may be sure of prompt delivery.

"Dodge Brothers' immense manufacturing facilities, and orders which have been placed for raw materials, however, are such that it is possible to increase output of this popular type to such volume as will insure ears for buyers without any long delay."

Hoville's Father-in-Law Dead

New York, Jan. 28 (A.P.).—Oscar Matson, father-in-law of Lieutenant George O. Noville, transatlantic flier, died today, aged 64, of injuries received when a sign fell on him in last Wednesday's gale.

TODAY

a day while we were in it and we lent the allied fighters ten thousand millions of dollars—yet it wasn't our war.

We are getting along nicely in Havana, our deliberations and arrangements with the Latin powers south of us going smooth ly.

Our men in this conference have an advantage that our statesmen didn't have at the famous Washington conference when we agreed to scrap new and unfinished battleships.

When our statesmen deal with British statesmen, especially when they look into the cold steel eye of Lord Balfour, they suffer from a shivery "inferiority complex," which puts them at a dis advantage.

They are free from that complex when they deal with their Latin friends.

A learned party, discussing "scientific conquests of 1927," says the atom really isn't what we think it is. It's a "group of whirling waves, consisting of no body knows what."

It's hard to keep track of science. At least, we know that there is no such thing as "solid matter."

A convent and a number of religious schools in Mexico are closed, managers "accused of teaching religious faith to children." Twenty nuns were arrested.

Shortly afterward a powerful earthquake shook that part of Mexico. That earthquake will have more effect on many Mexican minds than any argument for freedom of religion could have.

Russian Bolshevism has scented another big thing in Lindbergh in the Windy City and discuss some business plans. It isn't an amalgamation, as much as I should like to rumor, but rather, I should say, a meeting to arrange for the presentation of United Artists and Paramount's pictures.

If wise, he would have come to the United States to steal a hundred millions and enjoy himself.

There they shoot grafters without trying them. Here occasionally we try them, but we don't shoot or even put them in jail. not the really big ones.

Lloyd George was amazed to find in Brazil American business men capturing South American trade; "for the moment all the push comes from America," he says he. Thanks for the compliment. But the British are not backward.

TELEVISION TO BRIGHTEN HOME SAYS SARNOFF

A man, who 25 years ago at the age of nine was a Russian immigrant, stood today before the members of the University Club and in quiet voice, devoid of dramatics, predicted the invasion of the American home by television, latest wonder of radio science.

He spoke not at all like a native of Uzitza, Russia. Although he is and not at all like a telegraph company messenger boy—although he was Rather, he spoke as an American citizen—as David Sarnoff 37 years of age, vice-president and general manager of the Radio Corporation of America and one of the world's foremost authorities on the magic of radio.

The world will marvel at the future of television, Sarnoff told his audience.

"Within the last few weeks," he said, "we have seen radio broadcasting emerging from the laboratory and preparing to enter the home. The demonstration given recently by Schenectady, impressive as it was showed an art that is yet in the formative stage of development. Nevertheless, its direction is sure and its progress is inevitable.

TO COMPLETE PICTURE.

"The mission of television is to bring to the home the panorama of life of the great world about us. To a large extent, radio already has brought the opera, the concert stage, the listener to the fireside.

"Television will complete the picture by bringing to the home the visual spectacle made possible by the stagecraft of the opera and the pantomime of the events of life that must be seen as well as heard in order to make their due impression.

"In the field of education television will add the force of demonstration to the exposition made possible by the present-day status of broadcasting. Infinitely more than likely, will find in television as valuable a means of communication as it has already discovered in the broadcasting of sound."

NEW ACHIEVEMENTS.

Some of the latest achievements of the electrical art of sound production, Mr. Sarnoff declared, hold out great possibilities for the motion picture. "We have developed," he told his audience, "a complete system of synchronizing sound with motion pictures on the screen.

"In the progress being made in the transmission of photographic images by radio, a revolutionary system of telecryptic communication appears to be unfolding itself. The dot and dash system of electrical signalling.

"I firmly believe this will be succeeded by a system of communication that will transmit instantaneously the photographic image of a letter, a word, a memorize, or the entire piece of a newspaper, in facsimile form."

SHACKS HOUSE OVERFLOW AT ARMY POST

New York, Jan. 28.—Conditions at Fort Slocum, on Dakota Island, in Long Island Sound off New Rochelle, were found by the Citizens' Committee investigating army housing at military posts located within the New York metropolitan area to be in striking contrast to those existing at many forts in the vicinity of New York. The committee this month of the housing on the reservation of a permanent character, of brick and stone construction and in a good state of upkeep.

While the post has a permanent garrison of 400 men of the 18th infantry, including supply, medical and other detachments, under the command of Colonel Charles F. Humphrey, post commandant, Fort Slocum is now primarily as a recruiting depot, one of the most important in the East, where new recruits entering the Army are given their initial training in soldiers work.

Barracks Are Airy

This part of the work is in charge of Lieutenant-Colonel W. J. Davis, who superintends the business of recruiting and enlistment. Colonel Davis has seen a number of years service at Fort Slocum and has personally superintended the construction of several of the permanent buildings. The administration building, the hospital and especially the permanent brick barracks are lirected of new recruits, the committee found.

The post has a good water supply from the mainland, the heating equipment was found to be in good order and the sanitary arrangements, all within the barracks building, were regarded by the committ as being reasonably satisfactory.

The committee found a number of wartime shacks on the reservation, but these are used only for new recruits and for the housing of non-commissioned officers not entitled to separate quarters and their families. Colonel Humphrey pointed out that the Government should not be held responsible for the housing of this class of people, who became his charge when they became his enlisted men
